One Million Germans Reported Smashing at Defense Walls of Stalingrad; Nazis are Using Ponderous Masses of Tanks, Parachutists, Air-borne Motorcyclists and Endless Masses of Infantry

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

MOSCOW, Wednesday, Aug. 26. (AP)—The Russian High Command said today that the Red army had made seven counterattacks at one point northwest of Stalingrad, but it mentioned that industrial city for the first time in a communique, indicating that the 1,000,000 Germans who were smashing at the defense walls had made some progress.

The communique, however, did not mention any Russian withdrawals, either northwest or southwest of Stalingrad where the Germans were threatening the city with ponderous masses of tanks, parachutists, air-borne motorcyclists and endless masses of infantry.

But it did say the situation northwest of Stalingrad, where the Germans were pouring reinforcements across the River Don, had become complicated. This apparently referred to the give-and-take nature of the fighting caused by the numerous Russian counter-attacks.

Inflicting Huge Losses. "Our troops are repulsing enemy attacks and inflicting huge losses," the communique said.

The high command said heavy fighting also was continuing in the Caucasus south of Krasnodar, where the Germans were driving toward the Black sea, and in the Prokhladnenski area, eighty-five miles west of the rich Grozny oil fields.

Attacks in both these areas have been repulsed, the Russians said, and in the Prokhladnenski sector detachments of automatic riflemen landed behind Russian lines were said to have been wiped out.

An indication of the intense fighting around Stalingrad was seen in Russian claims of heavy tank and airplane losses inflicted on the Germans. One Soviet unit was said to have destroyed seventeen tanks in one day, another twenty-two and a third fourteen. Soviet planes and anti-aircraft batteries "at the approaches of Stalingrad" destroyed ninety-two German planes in two days.

The Germans were less than forty miles from the city on both sides, perhaps considerably closer in places. With their Axis Allies they were believed to number from eighty to 100 divisions in all. The divisions varied in size from 9,000 to 20,000 troops.

Russian dispatches said these numbers on some of the approaches to Stalingrad were "vastly superior." In one sector, one dispatch reported grimly: "Fascist tanks are fighting Russian infantrymen."

Nazi Dive-Bombers Active. Swarms of German dive-bombers were dumping tons of bombs on the defenders of Stalingrad; German fighters were machine-gunning every objective they could find.

Up to late afternoon the military dispatches did not mention any Russian evacuation—neither from Stalingrad nor in the Caucasus itself, where the battles are surging toward the Grozny oil fields and the city of Ordzhonikidze.

Grozny, in addition to possessing a rich oil pool, has in the past

Edward Scowles of DeFuniak Springs, Fla., bombardier aboard a Flying Fortress, proved he still knew plenty about flying when he brought the huge craft to a safe landing in England after the plane's pilots had been put out of action by German pursuits. ## 1,400 American Citizens Arrive Home from Orient

Repatriates Sing National Anthem at Sight of Statue of Liberty

JERSEY CITY, Aug. 25 (AP)—

Government authorities announced tonight that several persons disembarked during the day from the diplomatic exchange liner Gripsholm which brought more than 1,400 repatriates from the Orient had been sent to Ellis Island where cases concerning enemy aliens are investigated.

Officials would give no figures on the number of persons involved in the investigations. It was stated that about 300 had been cleared through various civil and military investigations at 8 p. m. Eastern War Time, eleven hours after the liner had docked at the end of the voyage from Lourenca Marques, Portuguese East Africa, where the Americans were exchanged for Japanese and Thai nationals.

The coolness of a late August dawn spread over the white painted liner as it paused in the lower New York harbor several hours before

Allied Circles Predict Swift Coup To Relieve Russian Forces

Return of Prime Minister to London Seen as Signal for Imminent Action against Hitler

By ROBERT BUNELLE

LONDON, Aug. 25 (AP)—A Swift Allied coup to relieve Russia with a hard, weighty smash at the Axis was predicted by competent Allied circles tonight as Prime Minister Churchill disclosed to his war cabinet associates the details of his epochal talks with Joseph Stalin.

Reports persisted that a united commander for a British, United States and Canadian continental invasion already had been appointed, but there was no such announcement.

Unofficial British and American commentators, who declined to be quoted by name, said Gen. George C. Marshall, United States chief of staff, was one of the most likely choices, particularly in view of the growing number of United States troops and fliers fighting under British commanders in the Mediterranean theater.

Harriman Returns to U. S.

If Marshall indeed were the man to lead the invaders, his selection might be one of the reasons for the imminent return to the United States of Waverell Harriman, President Roosevelt's personal representative at the Churchill-Stalin conversations.

Harriman, in announcing his return home a day after flying in from Egypt with Mr. Churchill, declared:

"I found the same determination and confidence in the outcome of the war among the Russians as I did on my trip with Lord Beaverbrook last year."

Stalin, Harriman asserted, appeared "strong and confident," and he said the decisions reached in Moscow were entirely satisfactory to the three major allies. He said United States supplies "were going to the Soviet in substantial quantities."

Assault Long Expected. A continental assault long has been expected as the Allies' most logical move in the war. London informants declared that Hitler was

Rhineland Raided By RAF in Strong Force Attack

Russia Bombs Helsinki; Vichy French Fire at British Fliers

LONDON, Aug. 25. (AP)—A forty-plane Russian attack on Helsinki and the passage of high-ceiling bombers over Lyon in Unoccupied France to the accompaniment of a half hour's anti-aircraft fire were reported today along with the RAF announcement of a strong force attack last night on the Rhineland.

London had a daylight air alarm, apparently as a result of a single plane flying over the Northern environs.

The single plane dropped bombs at a point in the home counties, causing some damage but no serious injuries, while a few German planes raided the south coast. One of the latter was shot down.

The announced RAF objectives were Frankfurt and Wiesbaden in the Rhineland, where industrial and chemical plants were bombed, and German railroad concentrations in the lowlands, which were crippled again.

Nazi Forces Grounded. The German air forces were described as virtually grounded in the face of the new attacks and informed British sources said the Germans still were suffering from losses and disorganization as a result of the commando raid on Dieppe and

President Plans New Inflation Curb Shortly

Program Will Probably Involve Restrictions on Wages and Farm Prices

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25 (AP)—After a long study of the cost of living problem, President Roosevelt indicated today that he was just about ready to unfold a new anti-inflation plan involving restrictions on wages and farm prices.

The program will be announced soon, he told a press conference, probably through a speech in the country and a simultaneous message to Congress. He said at the same time that he did not believe any new legislation would be necessary, leaving the impression that the message to Congress would be merely a report and an explanation of action he plans to take in his executive capacity.

Gives Hint of Coming Action

In a long discussion of the cost of living situation—he prefers that term to inflation—Mr. Roosevelt hinted strongly that the forthcoming action would be designed to limit both wage increases and the price of farm products.

The president mentioned tough sacrifices that the American people must expect. His new plan has not been put into final form, he said, but he would give reporters a sort of idea for a story.

The theme of this was that fac-

Steel Workers Awarded Hourly Pay Increase

WLB Directs Corporations To Make Raise for 250,000 Retroactive

By JOSEPH A. LOFTUS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25 (AP)—The war labor board today directed five U. S. steel corporation subsidiaries to raise the wages of 250,000 employees 5½ cents an hour, effective as of six months ago, although the companies contended their contracts at the old wage rate were operative until two weeks ago.

The board's order duplicates the provisions of its "little steel" order of last month, including maintenance of union membership, check-off of union dues, and minimum daily wage guarantees.

The amount of the increase was not contested before the board, and the vote to order the increase was unanimous. Interest centered on the retroactive feature and the vote on this was eight to four, the employer members dissenting. Opposition to it was built around a contention that contracts cannot be modified by a third party.

Retroactive to February

The board's press release said the wage increase was "made retroactive to February 15 in order to maintain the same wage relationship which has existed in the steel industry since 1921." Copies of the opinion in the case were not made

1,200 CONVICTED FOR SUBVERSIVE ACTIVITIES IN 9 MONTHS OF WAR

Swift, Dramatic Convictions Have Resulted for Would-be Saboteurs

(By The Associated Press)

As the United States approaches its ninth month of war nearly 1,200 persons have been convicted of various subversive and disloyal activities, an Associated Press roundup of wartime crimes against the nation showed today.

In this period six Nazi saboteurs were electrocuted, one man was sentenced to hang, and scores more were imprisoned for terms running from life to a few years.

Of the total convictions thus far, forty-eight were for espionage, ten for sabotage, and nine persons were found guilty as agents of hostile powers. During the past thirty days, eighty-four persons were either convicted or faced trial on charges of espionage, sedition or other offenses.

10,211 Aliens Apprehended

Since the start of the war 10,211 enemy aliens have been apprehended, of whom 3,491 were ordered interned, 2,348 paroled and 872 released. Hundreds of cases are still pending. Denaturalization proceedings have been instituted against more than 100 persons.

Swift, dramatic arrests and convictions have been the result of close co-operation between the Federal Bureau of Investigation, army and navy intelligence and civilian agencies participating in the drive to rid the country of enemy spies, saboteurs, arsonists, fifth columnists and traitors.

Youngest Brother Of King George VI And Entire Crew Die in Crash

Plane Was Carrying War-time Mission from Northern Scotland to Iceland on RAF Business

LONDON, Aug. 25 (AP)—The

Duke of Kent, youngest brother of King George VI, was killed today in the crash of the Sunderland flying boat in Northern Scotland while enroute to Iceland on active service as air commodore.

The entire crew of the War-time mission died with him.

The duke died on an official RAF business trip in his capacity of staff member inspector-general of the air force. A brief announcement from the air ministry gave no details of the crash, and official circles maintained a strict silence.

The most ill-minded of all the Royal family, the Duke was closely associated with the RAF and was frequently seen at fighter and bomber stations conversing with the men. He always wore his uniform of an RAF officer.

His was the first death of a member of the British Royal family in an airplane accident.

King George and Queen Elizabeth, the Queen Mother Mary, and other members of the Royal family were notified immediately of his death. The news also was cabled to the Duke of Windsor in the Bahamas.

No announcement had been made yet tonight concerning court mourning.

Several Crewmen Aboard

The funeral is expected to be a private service in view of the necessity of war-time secrecy concerning the movements of the Royal family.

Nine or ten crewmen were believed to have perished along with the Duke aboard the four-engine twenty-ton flying boat.

The Duke was fifth in the line of succession to the throne.

Within a few hours of the announcement of his death messages of sympathy began pouring in from all over the world.

Prince George Edward Alexander Edmund Windsor, born Dec. 20, 1902 would have been forty years old next December.

He married Princess Marina of

14 Are Missing On Alaska to Seattle Flight

Navy Announces Large Plane Is Lost; Baltimore Man Aboard

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25 (AP)—

The navy announced today that a large navy plane with fourteen officers and enlisted men aboard was missing on a flight from Alaska to Seattle.

Next of kin of the fourteen have been notified.

The plane disappeared between Kodiak and Whitehorse, Alaska. Three planes started on the trip and were forced by the weather to fly by instrument soon after taking off.

Navy aircraft have been searching for the plane and other agencies have been asked to co-operate.

The navy listed the following as missing:

Commander Joyce A. Ralph, 42, Baltimore.

Lieut. Commr. Burton Lee Doggett, 41, Charleston, S. C.

Lieut. Commr. Jerome H. Sparbo, 38, Hopkins, Minn.

Huge Japanese Armada Is Attempting To Smash U.S. Offensive in Solomons

Army and Navy Sea and Air Forces Join in Battle and Inflict Heavy Damage on Enemy; Half-dozen Japanese Ships Effectively Bombed or Torpedoed; No Information Is Given as to American Losses

DIES IN CRASH

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25 (AP)—Army and navy sea and air forces have joined battle with a huge Japanese armada attempting to smash the American offensive in the Solomons islands, the navy announced today, and so far have inflicted heavy damage on the enemy.

First reports made public from the fighting zone did not indicate the extent of American losses but showed that more than a half dozen enemy ships had been effectively bombed or torpedoed with these results:

One large carrier, otherwise not identified, hit four times by army bombers.

One smaller carrier, the Ryuzo, severely damaged by navy carrier-based aircraft.

One battleship hit by carrier-based planes.

Several cruisers hit by carrier-based planes.

One other cruiser and one enemy transport hit by United States aircraft yesterday in what appears to have been the preliminary phases of the battle. Both ships were left burning fiercely.

Violent Fighting Reported

The Solomons campaign burst into violent fighting after a period of desultory activity marked on August 23 by an enemy air attack on Guadalcanal island in which twenty-one Jap planes were shot down while American forces suffered only minor damage. On the same night enemy destroyers bombarded marine shore positions.

Naval forces under Vice-Admiral Robert Lee Ghormley, commander in the New Zealand area, and army forces of General Douglas MacArthur in Australia had been prepared for strong Japanese counterattacks, and presumably were in position to deal the enemy powerful blows.

A naval communique announcing that the battle was under way said that "it was expected that our occupation of the important enemy base of Tulagi would be countered by a violent attempt on the part of the enemy to recapture their shore bases in this area."

"This counter-attack has developed and is now being met," the communique added.

Indications were that the first actions were of the plane versus warship variety which have become so familiar in the amphibious warfare of the Pacific.

The enemy armada, when engaged, was bearing down upon the American-held Southeastern Solomons from the northeast.

One thing that was clear from the communique was that the represented Japan's major effort to break up the American offensive and recapture the Tulagi area of the Solomons where construction of a big enemy base was well advanced when the marines began their invasion two and a half weeks ago.

Civil Court Authority To Impose Death Penalty for Sabotage Urged

Wendell Berge Also Wants Law To Apply to Domestic Saboteurs

DETROIT, Aug. 25 (AP)—Asking that the nation not rely "on the fortuitous circumstance that a military commission might have jurisdiction," Wendell Berge, assistant United States attorney general, today urged that Federal sabotage laws be amended to permit discretionary use of the death penalty for saboteurs tried in civil courts.

Speaking before the annual meeting of the American Bar Association here, Berge also advocated revision of the laws to apply to domestic saboteurs "whose acts fall short of the classical concept" of sabotage attempts.

Wants Adequate Penalty

"Effective FBI investigation," he declared, "will often result in apprehending saboteurs before their acts have progressed much beyond the planning stage. There should be some adequate penalty, however, where the proof of intent is clear."

Two Incumbent Senators Have Stiff Contests

Maybank Holds Slight Lead; Doxey Is Trailing in Mississippi

(By The Associated Press)

Senator Burnet R. Maybank of South Carolina encountered a strong challenge to his bid for re-nomination in the Democratic primary yesterday from Eugene S. Bleasdale who told the voters that a champion of "white supremacy" was needed in Washington. Maybank led by the count two-thirds completed but by little more than 100 votes.

Another incumbent senator, Wall Doxey of Mississippi, was running second in his race but heading for a runoff primary three weeks hence with former Senator James Eastland.

California also held its primaries yesterday. There was no senatorial contest there but several congressional races were run on the issue of whether the incumbents' records before Pearl Harbor merited their return to office.

Returns from 816 of South Carolina's 1,536 precincts gave 41,091 for Maybank and 43,578 for Bleasdale, 65-year-old former chief justice of the state supreme court and half-brother of the late Senator Cole Bleasdale.

The vote from 790 of the 1,627 precincts in Mississippi showed Eastland with 34,872 votes, Doxey 29,461, Rep. Ross Collins 20,030, Roland Wall 6,157 and Douglas Smith 897. Collins nearly defeated Doxey last year for the short term created by the death of Senator Pat Harrison.

public immediately, but from an authoritative source, who would not permit use of his name, it was learned that the majority opinion on the retroactive provision argues that the courts have recognized that where technical objections go to the form instead of to the substance of a controversy, they must give way to real equities.

The wage contracts with the CIO United Steel Workers of America provided for reopening on ten days' notice and cancellation on twenty days' notice. The union argued that when the "little steel" dispute went to the board last February it believed the industry generally would accept the decision.

It contended that for years wage raises and cuts were made effective industry-wide on the same date. For that reason it sent no formal notice to U. S. Steel until July 21, after the "little steel" decision was reached. The U. S. steel corporation argued that it had no notice either from the union or the board that it was to be made subject to the decision involving the four "little steel" companies.

Opposes Security Provisions

The corporation opposed the union security provisions also, but the board's decision on those points was generally expected. The employer members voted "no."

The minimum daily wage guarantee was relatively unimportant and the board adopted it unanimously. The basic (common labor) wage in steel, with the increase, is seventy-eight cents an hour.

New Boost in

cash after the war, or for retirement of debts contracted before January 1, 1942.

In addition, the fiscal experts proposed that corporations be permitted to set up in a separate fund administered by the treasury an amount equal to fifteen per cent of their net taxable income — a "nest egg" reserve which could be used to make up inventory losses, pay for maintenance repairs deferred because of materials shortages caused by the war program and other specific items.

Senator Taft (O-Ohio) estimated that the treasury would receive approximately $2,000,000,000 yearly from corporations for such a reserve fund. While the government would lose in direct revenues the tax that would have been assessed on this amount of income, its immediate receipts would be increased and it could use this money for war financing without paying interest on it, other members pointed out.

Chairman George (D-Ga.) said the treasury proposals — exclusive of the reserve fund — would provide for an effective rate of taxation of 48.4 per cent on normal and surplus earnings of corporations and of 79.2 per cent on excess profits.

Taft said it was his understanding that immediate treasury receipts would be boosted $750,000,000 yearly by the proposed new rates, but that the government would be building up at the same time a backlog of $1,300,000,000 annually — less the amount of debt business firms paid immediately — which would go back to the corporations after the war when their bonds became negotiable.

Civil Court

In urging the death penalty for saboteurs tried in civil courts, Berge pointed out that the present penalty is imprisonment for not more than thirty years, or a fine of $10,000, or both.

"Thus, if domestic saboteurs shall carry on large operations in destruction of vital defense industries and materials, under present law we can not impose the death penalty even though such persons are just as effective in destructive work as technical enemies would be," he argued.

"I believe the crime of sabotage in and of itself should carry the discretionary death penalty, so that death in this type of case will not be confined merely to the fortuitous circumstance that in a particular case a military commission has jurisdiction."

Has 1,700 Naturalized Citizens

Berge said the government had approximately 1,700 naturalized citizens under consideration and investigation for denaturalization because of evidence "they did not in fact renounce absolutely and forever all allegiance and fidelity to the country of their origin."

The government, he said, has restricted prosecutions for sedition to "flagrant" cases only.

Earlier, Jack Garrett Scott, general counsel of the Office of Defense Transportation, told the association federal officials were working on a plan that would reduce the individual mileage of every motor vehicle in the United States "to that which is essential to carry on our economy and the war effort."

throwing his full might against South Russia and that if his present offensive is successful, the United States and Britain will be relegated to a defensive role and the war would be greatly prolonged.

It is two months before the onset of Russian winter—a great factor in saving Moscow last year—and this gave urgency to Allied plans to relieve the worried Russians in the Stalingrad region and the passes of the Caucasus ranges. No announcement came from Mr. Churchill, but most London observers saw in his return a signal for imminent aggressive action against Hitler.

Chungking advices told Chinese capture of the important centers of Kiangshan and Lanchow (A) in their drive against the Japanese invaders. The Chinese hold on the Chekiang-Kiangsi railway was widened to 100 miles, and progress was made toward recapture of air bases which would bring Tokyo within bombing range.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

The first impression from the navy's announcement of the new air and sea battle in the Solomons is that the Japanese may have blundered by taking risks outweighing possible gains.

Against an expedition of marines which has had time to dig in, put one or more air fields into operation and is supported by substantial navy and army sea and air forces, the Japanese sent a vulnerable armada which counter-attacked without benefit of surprise.

First reports tell of the bombing of two enemy carriers and a battleship, along with a number of other warships and accompanying vessels, and the downing of twenty-one enemy planes in a single engagement. The hopeful suspicion is encouraged thereby that the Japanese were so intent on revenge and gaining "face" that they disregarded the Battle of Midway's lesson of the perils of a sea attack on an objective defended by land-based aircraft.

Enshrouded in Secrecy

The whole fight for the Solomons is still so enshrouded in secrecy, however, that ordinary caution advises that judgment be suspended until more returns come in. The onslaught obviously was made with terrific force. Information is lacking on our own strength. Official warnings were given at the outset to expect heavy losses.

The Japanese would not have attacked unless they believed they had a promising chance to accomplish at least one of three things—to retake the Eastern Solomons, inflict a crippling defeat, or divert American naval strength to this relatively remote area while attacking again toward Pearl Harbor, the North Pacific or elsewhere.

In at least one particular the Japanese possess an advantage which naval men deem important. Their fleet is operating several hundred miles nearer a major base than Vice Admiral Robert L. Ghormley's.

This attack, like the frustrated Coral sea advance, seems to have stemmed from the island of Truk in the Caroline group less than 1,000 miles to the north, where the Japanese can obtain fuel, ammunition and reinforcements and make repairs.

Pearl Harbor, American headquarters for the Pacific naval war, is more than 2,500 miles away. The lesser bases of Pago Pago, Samoa, Sydney and Auckland are all farther from the scene than Truk.

Footholds Offset Jap Advantage

This naval advantage is offset, perhaps decisively, by the foothold the marines have won in three of the Solomon islands since the first surprise attack of August 8-9.

The navy's communique implies strongly that the defenders of the Tulagi harbor area and nearby Guadalacanal Island were aided by land-based fighters, these being credited with Sunday's score of twenty-one planes. Other American aircraft were identified as carrier based, or as army bombers. The Japanese are known to have had one or more air fields on Guadalacanal which the marines seized.

Odds seem to be that the hard-hitting army heavy bombers came from New Guinea, New Caledonia or the Fijis, all of which are within but near the limit of their range.

If it turns out the Japanese miscalculated, it was their second blunder in quick succession. Underestimating the marines soon after the start of the invasion, they lost an entire 700-man force dispatched from the northern Solomons in fast motor craft.

In that attack the Japanese violated one of their military principles. Admiral Ernest J. King, American commander-in-chief, had said that "they never send a boy to do a man's work."

Labor Unions Demand A Representative on War Production Board

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25 (AP)—Labor unions climaxed their drive for greater participation in guiding the war effort by demanding today a labor representative on the War Production Board.

Board Chairman Donald M. Nelson, addressing a meeting of twenty high union officials on the materials shortage, was confronted with a resolution setting forth four specific demands of which membership on the board itself was the chief.

Nelson assured the AFL and CIO leaders that it was his policy to give fair hearing to any ideas, whether from labor, management or other sources. He asked the group to name a subcommittee to present a specific program to him at the earliest opportunity.

Approximately 4,500,000 tons of waste paper were consumed in the United States in 1939.

Cards Turn Back Dodgers 2 to 1 In 14 Innings

Crowd of 33,260 Cash Customers See Thrilling Game in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 25 (AP)—The Cardinals pushed across a run in the last of the fourteenth inning tonight to down the Brooklyn Dodgers, 2 to 1, for the second consecutive night. A record night crowd of 33,260 cash customers crowded Sportsman's park.

Terry Moore slugged the winning hit, a sizzling grounder between third and shortstop, which was stopped by Lew Riggs in a sprawling tumble. He hurried throw to the plate failed to catch Marty Marion, who had been on third.

The three hour and 30 minute contest ended in anti-climax, in a way, for Les Webber was on the mound when Marion shot across home plate. He had relieved Larry French, who had relieved the weakening Whit Wyatt in the thirteenth. Mort Cooper went all the way for the Cards.

Bunts finally paved the way for victory for the Cards, after swinging freely failed to dent the tight Brooklyn defense or nick Wyatt, who allowed only seven hits in 12 2-3 innings.

George Kurowski opened the final inning for the winners with a perfect—and safe—bunt. Webber relieved French, then, but he suffered a like fate, for Marion's bunt down the first base line was fielded by Dolph Camilli, who attempted to catch Kurowski at second. The attempt failed.

Mort Cooper dropped the third straight bunt, but Kurowski was forced at third. Jimmy Brown walked, filling the bases and setting the stage for Moore.

supply ships. They were intercepted by American warships and the first strictly naval duel of the war between United States and Japanese fleet forces resulted. Enemy losses, the navy said, were not accurately determined in the darkness, but the United States Navy suffered a cruiser sunk and cruisers and destroyers damaged.

Make Third Effort

The third big Japanese effort was made on the night of August 21. By that time marine attacks had scattered the enemy's garrisons and sent their troops fleeing into the jungle. The Japanese navy landed a new force of 700 men.

In fighting that night and the next day this force was wiped out with 670 killed and thirty captured. The Marines lost twenty-eight killed and seventy-two wounded.

The exact part which raider battalions played in their operations was not disclosed here, but a description of their arms and training which marine headquarters released today indicated that they must have played a leading role.

Raider battalions, the official announcement said, are "compact, self-sufficient battalions" with a swift and a striking power comparable in amphibious attacks to paratroop actions in land battles.

The raiders carry automatic rifles, sub machine guns, Garand rifles and pistols. They can cover ground, half running and half walking, at a maximum speed of seven miles an hour; can fight with knives, daggers or bare hands, and have been taught to shoot from the hip.

Night attacks are their specialty and many of their operations are of Commando nature. It was a raider battalion, with James Roosevelt, the President's eldest son, second in command, that staged the successful raid on Makin Island, in the Gilbert group, August 17.

Astrolgy is the most elaborately organized of all superstitions today, in spite of the fact that it has long been ridiculed by intelligent persons the world over.

ALL SUPPLEMENTAL GASOLINE RATIONS TO BE RE-EXAMINED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25 (AP) — A re-examination of all supplemental gasoline rations with prosecutions to be undertaken in cases of deliberate violation of regulations was announced tonight by Paul M. O'Leary, deputy price administrator in charge of rationing.

O'Leary said particular attention would be paid to holders of "C" books under the preferred mileage regulations, and "S" books giving service rations to delivery cars, trucks and buses.

Local rationing boards will begin the investigation as soon as they have completed action on all supplementary applications made under the new coupon rationing system which went into effect July 22, O'Leary said.

First attention, he added, will be directed to cases "where doubt has arisen as to the eligibility of the supplementary ration book holder." The inquiry will cover not only the holder's right to a supplemental ration but to the amount of extra mileage he claimed as necessary in his business.

been a storage depot for more than a billion barrels of East Caucasian oil.

Stalingrad is the key to the Volga which links the Caucasus to the heart of the Russian, via the Caspian seaports. The Germans are within 170 miles of the Caspian itself.

(Late Berlin broadcasts said German tanks, southwest of Stalingrad, had broken through 7½ miles of Soviet bunker defenses.

(The German High Command reported advances "despite desperate Balzhvist resistance" both north and south of Stalingrad. In the Caucasus, German Alpine troops occupied several mountain passes, the communique said, and one group four days ago hoisted the German flag on 18,471-foot Mount Elbrus, highest peak in Europe, fifty miles southeast of Pyatigorsk.

On the Sea of Azov Rumanian formations were credited with capture of Temryuk, forty miles from the Black sea naval station of Novorossisk.

Munitions Plant Is Busy

(Radio Vichy quoted a German spokesman as saying "the fate of Stalingrad will be settled before the end of the week.")

Within Stalingrad life took a quickened tempo, although dispatches described the city as otherwise normal.

River barges bearing fresh supplies for the front were being rapidly unloaded—in one case in one-fifth the time previously required. A huge former tractor company, now making munitions and tanks, was working every minute night and day.

But the Red army defenses outside the city, already precarious, were greatly menaced by the presence of parachutists, coming down in clusters of as many as a hundred, anywhere from twelve to eighteen miles behind the lines.

In one place the 'chutists descended in strength sufficient to seize an airfield, whereupon Nazi transport planes alighted and unloaded motorcycles and anti-tank weapons.

Candidates Are Quiet Two Weeks Before Primary

1938 Democratic Contest Was Hot Race; O'Connor Won by Slim Margin

By PETE ZURLINDEN

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 25 (AP)—In case we didn't know—the 1942 primary elections are just two weeks away.

Furthermore, if you recall the 1938 Democratic primaries you're probably one of those who still declares:

"Brother, there was A primary!"

It was featured by a couple of vote-getters from way back, Herbert R. O'Connor and Howard W. Jackson, both of Baltimore, plus two other contenders, William S. Gordy, Jr., of Salisbury, and Lansdale G. Sasser, of Upper Marlboro.

Nobody Could Relax

It was a campaign that didn't allow anybody to relax. Everybody knew the Democratic winner was coming to Annapolis and O'Connor and Jackson stepped into the political ring swinging with both hands many weeks before the voters decided the issue at the polls.

O'Connor won by a slim margin. This year he's back in the running for re-election, pitted against three candidates in the Democratic primary. They are Thomas E. (Tom) Cook, of Frederick; Stephen B. Peddicord and John Kennedy of Baltimore.

The race has been under way for more than a month and the finish line is in sight.

Where are the candidates? Cook, pledging himself to save the state from "the politicians" hasn't waged any sort of campaign while Peddicord and Kennedy likewise haven't been heard. O'Connor, the incumbent, an odds-on-favorite, has settled back to let his primary foes carry the fight to him.

Governor Not "Stumping"

The governor, whose "stumping" reputation is widespread, hasn't made a political speech or appeared at more than several minor rallies since announcing for re-election.

To date the G.O.P. gubernatorial contest has been marked only by a few flurries between Theodore R. McKeldin and W. Pinkney West, the candidates.

It's a funny race no matter how you look at it. If they're saving for a "blitz" finish, it's about time somebody started making some kind of thunder. Most voters like a bit of "crack-barrel politicking" before going to the polls. If they don't have that chance to whet their appetites they're likely to forget about going to the polls altogether.

"Now if you remember 38 . . . when Howard did this . . . and Herb did that . . . Brother, there was a primary! But, say, pardon us . . . How did we get in here anyway?"

Racket Buster Dewey Is on His Way Up

EXULTANT REACTION OF Republicans to the three-cornered race for governor in New York, which has become a reality with the nomination of Racket Buster Thomas E. Dewey by the Republican state convention, has more than political emotion as a basis. Political realities are its foundation.

When James A. Farley, state chairman and former postmaster general, won the Democratic gubernatorial nomination for State Attorney General James J. Bennett, Jr., and severed Democratic ties to the American Labor party, a radical political phenomenon which has most of its strength in New York city, he performed an act which cannot fail to have a favorable effect on Republican chances. The 400,000 American Labor party votes he received in 1938 made possible the election of Lehman over Dewey by a scant margin of 65,000.

The Labor party candidate for governor, Alfange, is not a well known or colorful figure, but thousands of radicals will vote for him. Farley's job is to build up the Democratic party in New York state, in less than three months remaining until election, as the conservative party, garnering votes from the Republicans, or to attract the bulk of the Labor party vote—or both. Observers believe he will fail on all counts.

Dewey's star appears to be again on the ascendant. Until the eve of the Republican national convention in 1940, Dewey appeared as the likely nominee for president. He had many more votes than Wilkie on the first ballot. What happened thereafter may be disclosed by some political historian of the future. To date it has not been satisfactorily explained to those who do not believe that presidential nominations are the result of chance.

Dewey is young, dynamic and popular. At this stage of the campaign his election as the first Republican governor in New York state in twenty years appears almost a certainty. If he is elected governor it would require another political miracle or something to keep him out of the GOP presidential nomination in 1944.

Another Victory For the People

RETURNS to the Texas election bureau at Dallas with only two precincts missing indicate the election of Senator W. Lee O'Daniel as governor over the presidentially-supported James V. Allred by approximately 16,000 votes in the Democratic primary run-off.

O'Daniel, in a public statement, declared that he considered his defeat of Allred a "victory of the great rank and file of the people of Texas and for the principles of American democracy" and not a personal victory.

Well, he is right about that. The people of Texas rebelled against dictation of their gubernatorial choice from the White House at Washington, and therein is, indeed, a victory to be seen for the proper operation of the American governmental system, in the face of powerful administration intervention.

Following so closely after the administration defeat in New York state, it appears that the people, even the Democrats, are of opinion that the president would do better to stick to the war job and not waste his time on local politics. Of significance in the outcome in Texas is the statement made by Allred, also a former governor, that his defeat would constitute a repudiation of Roosevelt. Also of more than passing significance in that it again demonstrates the futility of its use, is the fact that Allred employed the isolationist charge against O'Daniel.

The Windshield Sticker Menace

IT IS GOOD to see public reaction favoring the protest against the growing practice of plastering stickers on automobile windshields.

One John Franz, of Baltimore, gives evidence of such reaction in a letter to the Baltimore Evening Sun, opposing a suggestion that car license plates be converted into such stickers in order to save steel.

"If memory serves," Franz stated, "there is at present a law or a ruling against obstructing the vision of the driver by putting stickers on the windshield. Of course, we all unwillingly are constantly violating some traffic law or rule. If I am correct, the law on stickers is the one most flagrantly violated and, law or no law, we are more and more obstructing the driver's vision. Take a look at this list, which you can easily verify:

"State inspection sticker, federal 'use' sticker, 'A' gas ration with a 'C' gas ration sticker, 'E' for other letter indicating the parking location at a certain defense plant, sticker offering a reward for information leading to the arrest, etc., of anyone stealing tires from the car (auto club); sticker;

'Buy Defense Bonds and Stamps' (and this is the only sticker that should be on the car).

"I have five of the above seven, and you ask for still one more! It is too much—the worm has turned."

In reply, the Evening Sun editor said that "the sticker need not interfere with the driver's vision—it could be placed, for example, on the lower left-hand corner of the rear window."

That would be all right if only one sticker were required, but it is the growing multiplicity of them that accentuates the driving hazard and every driver should be enabled to see through the rear window as well as through the windshield.

Senseless Motor Horn Blowing

THE KEYSTONE AUTOMOBILE CLUB, Maryland division, is furthering a campaign to end the horn-blowing nuisance. This is something worth while at any time, but it is particularly needful now in behalf of the night shift workers, many of whom are engaged in war production, who rest in daylight hours is disturbed by unnecessary noises.

Edward P. Curran, safety director of the club, says the effort to abolish unnecessary horn blasts coincides with generally accepted highway safety principles. For years, he notes, Keystone has carried on an educational campaign to acquaint drivers with the dangers of relying on horns instead of brakes.

"Unnecessary horn blowing," says Curran, "is a violation of the law of city, state and common sense. Generally speaking, the practice is an outward manifestation of inward impatience. The split-second drivers who feel it their duty to emit shrill blasts coincident with the change in traffic signal from red to green really ought to have their heads examined."

While directing its fire mainly at drivers, the club extends its criticism to parents who permit children to operate horns on parked automobiles, apparently in the belief the resulting din is "cute."

As Curran says, the motor horn, when properly used, has a definite value as an aid to safe driving, but when it is improperly used it is both a nuisance and a potential menace.

This Is No Time To Take Chances

ACCIDENTS, as recently pointed out by the National Safety Council, constitute a serious economic loss to the country, and that is a waste America cannot now afford.

In many cases accidents are not actually such but are only the inevitable result of some one's carelessness. One moment's disregard for a fundamental safety rule, a sudden rash decision to "take a chance," often results in serious injury.

It cannot too often be stressed that at this particular time it is little short of unpatriotic to be careless or to take unwarranted chances when the result will almost certainly be detrimental to the nation's best productive effort. There will be enough casualties on the fighting fronts, and workers on the home front should not add to the total.

The Nazis now know that when the Wrath of Civilization strikes them from across the Channel a more rapid gait than the goosestep is called for in making their getaway.

Automobiles that lack federal use stamps will be stopped. In the East many automobiles with federal use stamps have been stopped anyway.

Heat generated by the gubernatorial campaign in New York should make up any deficiency in fuel oil in the Empire state this fall.

Japan's Hirohito continues to write poetry, we read. Wonder if he's found a word to rhyme with "Solomon Islands"?

Poor old Joe Goebbels, no matter how hard he tries, just can't manage to talk as tough as those Commandos really are.

When Eyes Soften

By MARSHALL MASLIN

We may boast that we are hard and say that we have no use for sentiment because it is weakening. We may call it silly, sissy stuff that doesn't belong in the modern world. We may say we must be tough to get along today and we must be hardbitten, too.

But some things still make your eyes soften. Some things take the hardness out of you and bring the tears very close to the eyelids. And what are those softening things for YOU? You may be sure they are not sophisticated or "modern." They are simple, common events, or sights one may see almost any day in almost any place. Such things as these, perhaps:

A little boy trying to be a man and comforting his mother in a house where a husband and father lies dead.

A little girl crying in that gasping, broken way because her mother has gone away.

A fine, talented lad who dies a violent death just when his powers are ripening to their fullest.

A mother bird in distress when a cat has ravaged her nest.

A puppy with a broken leg, dragging himself to his master.

A blind man proudly refusing help and walking alone down the crowded sidewalk.

A mother whose son has gone wrong, telling: "Billy was always a good boy at heart."

Mothers and fathers, sisters and brothers and sweethearts, anxiously waiting for the announcement of the casualty lists and taking their grief silently to their hearts.

A very old lady biting her lips to keep the sobe away when her old husband goes on ahead and leaves her lonely.

A crippled lad, watching his rugged schoolmates play a game he knows he will never be able to share with them.

Any human being bravely putting up a front in time of grave trouble—and pretending he isn't worried.

Gen. Marshall Is Seen as Chief At Second Front

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—Of course the chances of an additional United Nations continental European front against Herr Hitler, London and doubtless in the Axis capitals also ever since British Prime Minister Winston Churchill's visit to Moscow, presumably to discuss the matter with Russian Chief Commissar Josef Stalin, with W. Averell Harriman sitting in as President Roosevelt's representative.

It's speculative talk, naturally. It scarcely requires saying that the American, British and Muscovite high commands will suppress the news as far as they can, for the sake of taking Adolf as much by surprise as possible.

Hard to Conceal

However, it's difficult to see how a formidable Yankee expeditionary force can be smuggled across the Atlantic without attracting a good bit of the Fuehrer's attention. In fact, he must have his suspicions already. Nevertheless, the military complex, is strongly for all the secrecy it can manage until the psychological moment arrives for its bomb to go off and blow the unprepared enemy to smithereens.

Still there's plenty of gossip. That the question arises, "Is Adolf fixed to put up a pretty stiff fight against an attack from his westward?" goes without quoting it.

Some authorities theorize affirmatively. There are others, though, who believe it would disorganize him frightfully.

Internal Help

In the first place, it's argued, the people of all the countries he's conquered temporarily, would grab the opportunity to rise up against him solidly, their numbers considerable and they could make him a deal of trouble, more or less, armed from here and Britain.

The Free French, it's a foregone conclusion, would be with 'em. As has been remarked previously, the Fuehrer's been trying to get Spain into his totalitarian partnership and Caudillo Franco doesn't seem unwilling. An Anglo-American continental invasion, though, would be fairly certain to scare him out of it, at least until convinced of the Nazis' ability to defend themselves.

And what would be the internal effect on the Axis?

The guess has been ventured before that Germany's own morale is increasingly a trifle rickety. The last war demonstrated that those Teutons can crack up in a hurry. What mightn't a run of bad luck do to it this time?

Italy Has Cold Feet

It's been known all along that Italy's feet are cold. Maybe Duce Mussolini's personal pair of 'em are, or, if not, his home folk might apply some refrigeration.

Those Japs, it's recognized, want to invade and gobble Asiatic Russia. With the Soviets hard pushed on their German frontage, the attempt probably wouldn't be a poor gamble by the Mikado. That would be decidedly calculated to make Moscow fold up as one of the United Nations. But it wouldn't be at all a healthy experiment for Nippon, with Russia's Siberian hands left comparatively free by United Nations' activities in the opposite direction and with the United States hammering at the island empire from our side of the Pacific, plus China in its immediate neighborhood.

Doolittle over Germany?

It's noteworthy that Gen. James H. Doolittle, who bombed Japan's chief cities not long ago, has been in London recently. He was so successful and so rattled Jap morale that it's been wondered why he didn't do it some more, but apparently he's been figuring that

There are obvious reasons for the increase of the farm income over last year's $11,500,000,000 figure. Under the lend-lease program, hundreds of millions of dollars worth of food products are going to the Allied nations. The wholesale and retail price ceilings on the major food products—and the lack of ceilings on farm products—have encouraged increased acreage and more livestock.

The president's advice is timely, and farmers will do well to heed it. Farmers who have their business on a firm foundation will be in good position to meet postwar developments.

Psychologists give the explanation. They say music does things to you whether you like it or not. Fast tempos invariably raise your pulse, your perspiration and your blood pressure, and thus make you work faster. On the other hand, slow music—Victor Herbert waltzes, for example—helps you relax during rest periods.

The Digest article says that only in its application to giant plants with thousands of workers is music for production really new. Thomas Edison saw its possibilities after he invented the phonograph, and compiled a catalogue of "mood music" for industrial workers. And work songs no doubt helped build the pyramids.

Music is now played during working hours in three thousand American war plants to increase production—and it is getting results, according to an article in the September Reader's Digest. Bethlehem Steel, Consolidated Aircraft, Curtiss-Wright, and Ford all have music-conditioned their plants. So have the Pictinny arsenal and the Todd shipyards. The battleship Alabama was built to the strains of music at Norfolk. Results were so remarkable that the Maritime commission is talking of music for all shipyards.

The Digest article says that music, piped to workers at the peak fatigue hours, lessens accidents and spoiled work and increases production by two to eleven per cent or more. Some firms have spent up to $50,000 for amplifying and acoustical systems and figure they're getting their money's worth.

Purpose of Wilkie's Trip Overseas Is A Deep Mystery Despite Explanation

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25—There's a good deal of mystery about that trip of Wendell Wilkie to points east beyond the seas. All the different explanations, official and unofficial, do not seem to explain anything satisfactorily.

Thus if Mr. Wilkie were going, as the White House says, to tell Russia, China, Iran, Iraq, Egypt and their various rulers how much better production really is in America than the newspapers here say it is, the question arises why it wouldn't have been better to send William Green or Phil Murray, who can testify without blinking an eye that there have been no strikes, no war stoppages and no production delays. These are the men who, like the president, believe America doesn't have any labor troubles—or hardly any.

Just why Mr. Wilkie was chosen to tell the foreign statesmen that the American press has been lying about the strikes or exaggerating the insignificant — so insignificant that the War Labor Board one day has to threaten charges of treason against inciters of jurisdictional strikes and another day the president has to order the army to take over a plant in Massachusetts and the navy the next day to take one over in New Jersey—is a little difficult for the average observer to understand.

Why Not Tell Envoys?

Mr. Wilkie has had a good deal of confidence in the American press and its handling of news reports on a spontaneous rather than an artificial basis, but even if he shared the president's distrust it still is a puzzle why Mr. Roosevelt didn't call in the ambassadors and ministers of the various countries and let them convey "the truth" to their respective governments directly. Also it is a bit of a mystery how, with the existing censorship of all outgoing press and radio messages, the censorship bureau permits these

Institution Guards To Get Pay Increase

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 25. (AP)—Governor O'Connor has announced that Maryland's penal institution guards, now receiving only one day off every two weeks, will get fourteen days wages for thirteen days work.

O'Connor said he would approve a plan submitted by Chairman Willis R. Jones, of the board of correction, making the increase effective as of Aug. 15.

"Under an act of the 1941 legislature," O'Connor said, "the board of correction was authorized and directed to put into force and operation a schedule whereby each guard would be entitled to one day off a week, and to vacation and sick leave as granted other state employees, provided adequate funds for salaries were apportioned to maintain such a schedule."

"However," O'Connor continued, "the budget was enacted before the bill as passed and no specific appropriation was made for employment of the extra guards, who would be necessary in order to effect the arrangement contemplated by the law."

Please Don't Call Washington unless you must!

WITH the war effort of 27 United Nations centered upon it, Washington is probably the busiest city in the world. It is fast outgrowing its physical limits—and its telephone facilities.

Since Pearl Harbor, long distance telephone calls in and out of Washington have increased from 45,000 a day to about 70,000, or more than 50 per cent. Some of these calls, of vital importance, get caught in the rush.

Now, it is no longer possible to expand telephone facilities as in the past because critical materials are needed for the fighting fronts.

So we must ask you to cut down on every call you can to Washington and other busy cities across the country—so that the Army, Navy and the Government can have the right-of-way to get America's biggest job done.

If you must make a long distance call, won't you place it in the off-peak hours—

Parents Should Omit Arguments With Youngsters

Dr. Myers Doesn't Recommend Use of Tongue as Means of Punishment

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

A successful business man once told me that his 13-year-old girl and her mother were always arguing. "One day," said he, "when I came home I stepped into the row. I got a piece of board and gave that girl a good beating." The father is a college graduate, a handsome man, well dressed. Such conduct by parents in this year of 1942 is hardly thinkable.

Too bad that any parent ever uses his tongue as a means of punishment. "No" ought to mean "No" to the child, regardless of the tone of voice. Our speech ought to be a means of comfortable, happy and companionable communication with the other members of the family.

We parents ought to be too proud and dignified to stoop to childish things. When children quarrel with one another a favorite resort is tongue rivalry in the utterance of mean things. Children with their limited experience and limited sense of social and moral values hardly can be expected to be considerate always of their comrades' rights and feelings.

Self-Control Necessary

But we parents should know bet-

TODAY'S VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

By DEAN HALLIDAY

STORING CELERY

There are several ways in which celery can be stored for winter use. That which is to be used early can be banked with earth and covered over with leaves and used as it is needed directly from the garden.

Celery to be used later in the fall can be stored in a trench. Make the trench 10 to 12 inches wide and deep enough so that the top of the leaves will only be two or three inches above soil level. Pack the celery in close together with whatever soil will adhere to the roots. The stalks and leaves must be dry when stored. Boards are nailed together to form a trough-shaped roof over the trench. This roof should shed rain or melting snow. During warm weather this roof should be lifted and braced with a stone to give ample ventilation. As severe cold weather sets in add earth, straw, hay or other insulating material over the roof to give protection against freezing.

As illustrated, when there is only a small amount of celery to be stored it should be dug with roots and soil attached and placed in moist soil or sand on the cellar floor or in a deep box having loose soil in the bottom. It may be necessary to water the soil occasionally and this can be done by means of a long funnel so as not to get any water on the stalks or foliage.

Piles—Get Relief Now

Millions of sufferers in the last 30 years have found a way to get quick relief from the itching and smarting of piles. They use a delightful cooling, soothing and astringent formula—Peterson's Ointment. No wonder one sufferer writes, "The itching and smarting were relieved, and I slept all night. Peterson's Ointment is marvelous." 35c a box, all druggists. 60c in tube with applicator. Money back if not delighted.

ter, should be more cultivated, ought to have more self-control.

We desire always to be reasonable with the child. We want to prove to him that we never make a decision, never utter a command that is not justified. It does not follow that the moment when the child does not welcome our decision, when he is emotionally staked against us, is the time to justify ourselves. Our fairness to him, and the reasonableness of our command are best observed through day by day experience.

The child who has observed that we always had been reasonable will learn to accept our decisions at critical times unless we encourage him to challenge us, and embroil us in an argument so as to escape the unpleasant task confronting him.

Rule for Parents

As a rule, it is well to proceed as follows: Never give a command until you are certain of its justice. If you are not sure it is likely to be accepted as reasonable and fair, explain as much as you consider necessary. But once the command is made expect the child to carry it out. Let him know that when he has executed the command he can come back and say anything to you he chooses, and that if you can be persuaded of your error you will make due amends.

Don't talk back to a child. Never, never, argue with him unless you can do it as calmly as if you were talking about the season or the weather. When we stoop to quarrel with our children we have classed ourselves as infants.

A list of books on understanding children and guiding and living happily with them may be had by writing me at 235 East Fifty-fifth street, New York city, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a cent stamp on it.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Have you any suggestions on how to improve a child's spelling? A. Yes; I have a special bulletin on this very subject, to be had without cost by writing me at the above address enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

No Fun To Smile All the While

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—"When you're smiling, just keep on smiling."

Those song words are meaningless for Charlie Erbele, 22-year-old Louisville dancer, because his jaw is broken and has been wired up inside so that he has to smile all the time.

Erbele's perpetual smile dates back to last winter in New York when he slipped in the bathtub and broke his jaw. Just when the jaw was almost healed and the wires ready to be removed, a feminine dancing partner kicked him in the face during an intricate routine and the jaw was broken again.

Barring further mishaps, Erbele, who is appearing in a series of outdoor light operas here, expects to have the wires removed from his jaw soon. Then, he vows, he is going to smile only when something pleasant happens.

One great difference between Oriental and Occidental civilization is that the westerners shake each other's hands, while the Chinese shake their own, says Lin Yutang, Chinese author. He considers the westerner's handshake "barbarous."

Ministers May Buy Tires or Cars Now

OPA Amends Regulations because Adequate Transportation Is Lacking

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25 (AP)—The Office of Price Administration issued amendments today to the automobile and tire rationing regulations outlining conditions under which regularly practicing ministers and religious practitioners may purchase either tires or a car.

Ministers and practitioners, the OPA said, are eligible for either tires or a car when an auto is required because there is no other adequate means of transportation available. Use of rationed tires and automobiles is restricted to the locality which the minister or practitioner regularly serves.

Conducting church services is recognized as among the needs to be served by a minister, but organizational or evangelistic activity are not so considered.

In another order today, OPA specified that preferred mileage for ministers and practitioners be restricted, in gas rationing regulations, to those using their cars to serve members of a religious group in a specific area.

Soldier Voting

Kentucky and Chairman Green (D-R) of the Elections committee expressed fear the addition of this amendment, because of its controversial nature, might prevent enactment of the bill in time to apply it to the November elections. (The measure, previously passed by the House, goes back there for action on the Senate changes.)

Green and Barkley also opposed another amendment, carried 28 to 25, extending the provisions of the House-approved bill to primaries, as well as general elections.

"They contended the two amendments, as well as one adopted yesterday permitting soldiers and sailors serving in foreign lands to vote by mail, imperiled prospects for quick House action."

The House bill confined the mail vote privilege to troops within the continental United States on the plea of army and navy officials that the foreign voting presented almost insurmountable administrative problems and might permit the enemy to learn troop locations.

Senator George (D-Ga.) expressed the view the bill would permit absentee voting by soldiers from all states except Kentucky, whose courts have held that the voter must, under the state constitution, present himself in person in order to vote.

Debate Continues

Senators Brooks (R-Ill.) and Pepper (D-Fla.) sponsored the anti-poll tax amendment although Pepper accused Brooks of "plagiarism or legislative hi-jacking" in offering the amendment while the Florida senator's own amendment was pending on the desk.

Senator Connally accused proponents of the amendment of "crusading with shining swords."

He said he wasn't "wedded to the poll tax" but "I am wedded to the idea of leaving the power to fix qualifications of voters where the men who wrote the Constitution lodged it, in the several states."

Relying to quotations from various court decisions, Connally declared he preferred to quote the "men who wrote the Constitution, not the men who have tinkered with it."

Senator McKellar (D-Tenn.), opposing the amendment for which Senator Stewart (D-Tenn.) voted, told the Senate Tennessee would abolish its poll tax requirement at its next legislative session.

In the 1800's tuberculosis among cattle was so prevalent that a Massachusetts physician said, "A cat could not be kept at the cattle barn without developing a cough, becoming emaciated and pining away."

AT HEADQUARTERS IN BRITAIN

A Yank military policeman is shown on guard at one of the entrances to the headquarters of Major Gen. Mark W. Clark, commanding general of the American ground forces in England. An old English castle has been turned over to the U. S. Army for the purpose. Those guns are probably a bit out of date for use in this war.

All You Need Is The Know-How

BALTIMORE (AP)—A War Department employee with a wife and seven children, and earning $5.12 a day, directed a bi-monthly deduction of $10 for war bonds.

Then he was promoted, raised to $5.60 a day, and he hiked the deduction to $15.50.

"I am thankful for my job and my promotion," he said in a letter to officials. "I know of no better way to save my earnings. I have a wife and seven children, but after being on relief for seven years we both know how to budget our income, and live within our means."

Rhineland

subsidary operations against Nazi aerial power.

Although maintaining aerial superiority over Western Europe, the RAF paid heavily for the assault on the Frankfurt area, losing sixteen bombers out of what was officially described as "strong forces." It was the heaviest loss in a night bomber operation since the raid on the main area Aug. 1.

Vichy reported a great number of planes passed over Lyon at a height of six miles last night, taking an hour and a half to go by, and that French ground defenses sent up a barrage for a half hour.

There was no verification of the French suspicion that the planes might have been American flying fortresses, and there was no Roman confirmation of the obvious speculation that they might be en route to objectives in Northern Italy.

Planes also were heard over Vichy. The Russian raid on the Finnish capital was reported on the Stockholm, Vichy and Finnish radios. The French reported it caused the longest alarm of the year in Helsinki. Stockholm said anti-aircraft put up "a colossal barrage of fire," and the Finns said the attackers were driven off by ack-ack after the biggest raid on Helsinki since the summer of 1941.

Of the RAF's Rhineland attack, the German high command said some civilian casualties and damage resulted at Frankfurt and Mainz, that sixteen British planes were shot down (agreeing with the British announcement of losses), and that two British planes were downed on daylight flights over Germany yesterday. The Germans added that their air forces raided southern England in daylight yesterday.

Youngest Brother

Greece in 1934, and three children were born to them.

The children are Prince Edward, 6, Princess Alexandra, 5, and Prince George, who was born on July 4, last. The youngest son also bears the name Franklin, for President Roosevelt.

The Duke visited Canada and the United States exactly a year ago stopping in Washington as the guest of President Roosevelt, and making an extensive tour of war plants in both countries.

The Duke was named governor-general of Australia in 1938 to become effective the following year. The war caused the cancellation of that appointment, and in 1940 the Duke was assigned to the RAF. He was probably the most air-minded of the Royal family, being the first of them to fly the Atlantic last year when he visited the United States and Canada. He had flown many thousands of miles under war conditions.

Was Aviation Enthusiast "I not only take a keen interest in flying myself," the Duke once said, "but I am also a firm believer in the great future that is in store for this means of transport."

One of the great delights of the Duke's trip to America last year was his trip through the big aircraft factories there.

He was the fourth son of King George V of Britain. His eldest brother, the Duke of Windsor, now is serving as governor-general of the Bahamas. Albert, the Duke of York became King George VI upon the abdication of the former, and the Duke of Gloucester is serving in the armed forces of Britain.

The youngest of the sons of King George and Queen Mary had been making extensive but little publicized air trips for some time in his RAF work.

The Duke, who was a group captain in the RAF, relinquished the rank of air vice-marshal in 1940, when he joined the RAF, so that he should not be senior to the experienced officers with whom he had to work in his capacity as warfare officer.

His flight to Canada last July, made for the purpose of inspecting empire air training schools, was secret.

The Duke learned to pilot a plane in 1930 and lost none of his enthusiasm for flying when three years ago he was involved in a plane mishap at Dyce Airfield, Aberdeen.

News of Death Is Broadcast

LONDON, Aug. 25 (AP)—Britons received the first news of the death of the Duke of Kent in a midnight news broadcast over the BBC.

"It is with deep regret," said the announcer in low tones, "that we announce that the Duke of Kent was killed on active service this afternoon when a Sunderland flying boat crashed in the north of Scotland."

After reading a brief air ministry statement, the announcer turned immediately to news from Russia.

Johnny Won't Lose His Balance in Army

CAMP LEE, Va. (AP)—No stranger, that's not a new Army maneuver designed to fool the Japs and Germans. In fact it hasn't anything to do with the Army.

That's Private Johnny Lucyn, of Philadelphia, the vaudeville performer. But he doesn't get paid for it here. Johnny says he needs to keep in practice, so when he finishes a day of technical training in automobile mechanics he starts practice in balancing.

He walks about the camp on his hands, and often with his famous five-foot stilts between those hands and the ground, one of the most difficult of all balancing stunts.

Russian Convoy Losses Are Heavy

Sometimes Reach Fifty Percent, Navy Public Relations Director Says

DES MOINES, Ia., Aug. 25 (AP)—Losses in convoys to Russia's arctic ports have run as high as fifty percent of the supplies in some instances, it was disclosed here today by Capt. Leland P. Lovette, director of public relations for the United States navy.

"The Russian front is highly important to us," he told 800 persons at a luncheon. "It is difficult to get guns, ammunition and food supplies to them. In some convoys by way of Murmansk and Archangel, there has been a loss of fifty per cent of the supplies, but we still feel that it's worth it if we get the rest through."

"Russia is doing a job for us—a job that we might have had to do ourselves."

The captain admitted also "we've taken a pretty heavy licking from the U-boats—and we will as long as there are U-boats, perhaps. But we have found ways to successfully compete against them."

"In the zone we have established, we have lost only six ships. And I am proud to say—although I say it with trepidation—that we haven't yet lost a ship loaded with troops since we started this war."

Gets 10 Years in Prison

Ten years imprisonment was meted out in Hartford, Conn., Tuesday to the Rev. Kurt E. B. Molzahn, forty-seven-year-old Philadelphia clergyman, and a former German cavalry officer accused of having been a party to a plot to convey military information to Germany and Japan. He was convicted last Friday.

Max Stephan, Detroit restaurateur, convicted and sentenced to hang Nov. 13 for aiding the flight of a Nazi air officer from a Canadian concentration camp, awaits the outcome of an appeal at the federal prison at Milan, Mich.

In the most sensational case all six of the eight Nazi saboteurs landed on the American coast, Long Island and Florida with money and explosives with which to wage a terroristic campaign against American industry, were executed in the electric chair in Washington on Aug. 8.

Two others, found guilty on the same charges, escaped the death penalty by talking on the rest. One was imprisoned for life and the other for thirty years, both at his labor.

Gerhard Wilhelm Kunze, former national leader of the German American Bund, pleaded guilty in Hartford, Conn., to a charge of betraying his country as a co-conspirator with Rev. Molzahn and the others, and was sent to prison fifteen years.

In 30 Men, 3 Women Jailed In one day—on January 2, 1941 thirty men and three women New York were jailed to serve a total of 279 years for participating in a fantastic spy ring for the government. Included in group was the sixty-four-year-old soldier of fortune and professional spy, Frederick Joubert Duquesne who received a sentence of eight years.

In a sweeping drive against German-American Bund, twenty-nine persons were indicted in various sections of the country during July on charges of violating the Selective Service or alien registration acts.

Werner Von Clemm, a Long Island importer, on Monday received a two years' prison sentence in federal court in New York and fined $10,000 for conspiring to export diamonds seized by Nazis in Belgium and Holland.

President Plans

tory workers and farmers were ter-dependent—that if farm prices go up, wages must rise, and wages go up, the farmer must impose restrictions on labor and on agriculture, or vice versa.

Wages Should Be Stabilized Mr. Roosevelt ventured thought that wages should be stabilized at essentially the present level but with the qualification the matter should be considered from a common-sense viewpoint food prices rise thirty per cent held down; and if food cost held to where they are now, but not think labor should have advantages.

The thirty per cent figure mentioned recently by Price Administrator Leon Henderson as to tent to which prices of foods covered by ceilings would rise year unless action were taken strengthen the controls over prices.

Mr. Roosevelt did not give a hint date for announcing the program but said with a chuckle that it would be before, on October Labor day

Chances of High School Football Players Being Injured Are 1 to 4

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D. If you have a boy entering high school this fall and you let him play football, the chances are 100 per cent he will get bruised up somewhat during the season. The chances are one to four that he will receive an injury sufficiently serious to lay him up. The chances are one to five that he will receive a permanent injury that will last through life—ranging from some front teeth out, a flattened nose, a fracture around a joint that will leave a stiff joint for life, or a cartilage dislocated from a knee, or a fractured pelvis. The chances are about one in 1000 that he will be killed.

The chances are about one in 10,000 that he will have to have a leg amputated.

The chances are very remote, but I know of two cases, that he will be blinded for life.

Dangers of High School Players In college these chances are about halved. The college player has more mature bones, better pro-TECTIVE equipment and is a little more wary. That is why I think football should be prohibited for high school students until at least the senior year.

These statements are made on the basis of a nationwide clipping service that I began to subscribe to last September. I by no means claim they are complete.

If you think I exaggerate, let me quote the report of the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council, for the year 1941: "One out of every three football players is injured each year. Based on a five-year survey, 100,000 such injuries cost American parents $1,000,000 annually. Between 60,000 and 75,000 boys are temporarily crippled each year and 1,225,000 school days are lost through injuries."

I have records of twenty-three deaths last year from football injuries—one in college, fourteen in high school and eight on sandlots.

The coaches don't like these figures. One of them wrote a very sarcastic article about me last year. The next day one of the players on his team was killed by injury during the game. When interviewed the coach said that such things constituted only a small percentage considering how many players of football there were in the country. That should have been a great comfort to the dead boy's parents.

But the coaches ought to be careful themselves. There is considerable occupational hazard to being a football coach. Two last year died of heart failure during the game; these were those fellows who had built up such a fine physique through a lifetime of athletics. We all hear football is so good for the health.

I have a record of eleven coaches who suffered injuries as serious as broken bones, or worse, while teaching their pupils how to protect themselves.

Three games in 1941 were called off because one or the other team had injured so many players in action that they could not muster eleven whole men who could stand on their feet.

Questions and Answers

J. N.: Will a blood test such as is given draftees when inducted into the Army show without doubt whether a man is afflicted with hemophilia (bleeder's disease)?

Answer: If the coagulation time of the blood is tested, it will show positively whether hemophilia is present or not. I do not know how many induction boards give this test. Usually by the time a man arrives at draft age he knows whether he is a hemophiliac or not by his history of hemorrhage.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

YOUNG Dr. Bradshaw wore his dinner clothes with the ease and grace that comes from a complete lack of self-consciousness. But when he had given his battered hat and old coat to the Kilcran butler and was left alone in the great hall that divided Stormwood, he was conscious of a sense of nervous anticipation that was unfamiliar to him. It was the coming meeting with Tom Kilcran that induced it. He was not at all sure that the social approach to the mill owner was a wise one.

He stood a trifle uncertainly before the bright fire that crackled in the hearth. Should he, he wondered, follow the butler or wait to be retrieved? He looked in the mirror above the hearth and passed the palm of his hand over his hair, pulled down his dinner jacket and added another eighth of an inch to the display of his pocket handkerchief with frowning concentration.

"You'll more than do, Doctor!" Pamela's throaty voice was benign and slightly amused. She spoke from the stairs where she stood midway.

Tony looked up quickly and said, "Thanks." He gave her a half-embarrassed grin, looking up at her and running his quick glance from the top of her head, where her hair was drawn, into a black snood, and down the slim length of her encased in lustrous black. She looked inches taller and at least five years older than when he had seen her in the book shop.

She stood motionless, prettily posed against the background of the wide, maroon-carpeted stairs, completely aware of what he saw and was thinking.

"Well," he said, "do you come down or do we sit on the stairs?" She pouted. "You were supposed to say, 'Very nice picture you make, Pamela.'"

He did his best to look crushed. "I was afraid to say anything. You've looked in your mirror and it must have told you more than anything I could say."

An Old Story

PUEBLO, Colo. (P)—Police knew exactly where to search when a Pueblo mother reported her son had been missing two days. He disappeared at the same time a circus had folded its tents and moved on. He was in the next town, watering elephants.

"You're doing better. Come up, Tony. Father's busy in the library and Mother isn't dressed yet. Besides, I want to have you alone for a little while. We're going to have cocktails in my sitting room."

They went up the stairs together and into a small pine paneled room. There was a great deal of cream leather and gleaming chromium and a pale beige rug four inches thick on the floor. Tony cast an uncomfortable eye on the modern furniture that first appalled and then surprised him by being extraordinarily comfortable.

He tried a chair gingerly, then got up and wandered around the room looking at the strange and interesting prints with frank curiosity and stopped in front of something that he thought might be a pink seal balancing a red ball on its nose.

"It's Picasso's 'Woman in an Armchair'." Pamela told him, seating herself before a glass table with chromium legs. Reynolds had brought in a tray with two glasses and a glass shaker filled with amber fluid. This Pamela stirred slowly.

"Must have done it under anaesthesia," Tony said. "Want any help with that?"

She shook her head and poured the liquid into the two glasses with swift gestures, filling each to the brim without spilling a drop.

Tony's admiration was profound. "Quite an expert, aren't you?"

She gave him a glass. "Ought to be. I learned that trick from Harry, chief bartender at the Ritz bar in Paris, a long time ago, when I was 14."

"If I'd been bringing you up, you wouldn't have known what a chief bartender was at that age."

"In a minute, you'll be stroking the long beard you haven't got, Tony. Don't treat me like a child, please. After all, it's a short life and you have to crowd it, you know."

She lifted her glass and touched it to his. "Here's to the success of whatever you want most."

They sipped gravely and Pamela said, "Now give me the set-up so we can plan our campaign."

Tony put down his scarcely touched glass. "There isn't any set-up. The town needs a hospital. The biggest part of the town is made up of mill people and it's my job to take care of them. I think I can do a better job with a hospital. Therefore, I've asked your father to see that we get one. That's about all there is to it."

"And you've got the whole thing

worked out?"
"Down to the last swab. It'll cost $150,000." He told her everything and more, without mentioning the cases that made the necessity urgent. When he stopped, she encouraged him with intelligent and interested questions. They were on their second, neglected cocktail, and Tony was deep in his subject when Reynolds came to the door to say that dinner was served.

"We won't talk about it anymore tonight, Tony," Pamela said as they went downstairs. "I'll sound out Father to see what his real reactions are and we'll plot from there on. You see, he doesn't suspect that your presence means anything more than . . . than . . ."

She let her voice trail off and managed a quite convincing show of shyness.

"But, look here, if I'm here under false pretenses . . ."

"Nothing more," she said a trifle tartly, "than that I've snagged the most attractive bachelor in town for dinner and bridge."

Tony tried—and felt that he failed miserably, unaware of his success—to look like a most attractive bachelor when he was presented to Claire Kilcran.

Tom Kilcran offered his hand and said, "Good evening, Bradshaw. Glad to have you with us."

"Glad to be here, sir." Too late Tony regretted the sir.

He took Pamela's mother into dinner and sat at her right. He tried to remember details of the handsome decor of the dining room, the delicious food expertly served, the conversation that floated easily across the flowers and lace and silver during the leisurely dinner because he knew that Addie would be waiting up with avid curiosity to hear about it. But these things might have been no more than words printed on a hastily skimmed page, because his mind was at work on the things he meant to say to his host when the cigars and port arrived and they would be alone.

It was after nine when Claire and Pamela rose.

Claire turned back at the door to say, "Don't be too long. We're anxious for some good bridge, Doctor."

Tony felt that Pamela's gaze sought his, and looked at her.

"Don't talk business tonight," she warned, smiling. There was a slight emphasis on the last word, reminding Tony that he was not to bring up the subject that had brought him to Stormwood.

Partial Pardon
For Washington
County ConvictO'Connor Frees Reginald
Walters Serving a Life Term

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 25 (AP)—Governor O'Connor has granted ten paroles, one commutation of sentence and one partial pardon upon the recommendation of the director of parole and probation.

Reginald E. Walters, serving a life sentence after conviction of murder in Washington county, was granted the partial pardon.

O'Connor said he granted the partial pardon after a number of "reputable citizens of the state had appealed in Walters' behalf," six of the convicting jurors signed a statement urging clemency, prison authorities agreed he should be released and Walters was assured of a position with one of the largest corporations in Maryland.

The partial pardon, O'Connor said, means that Walters "will remain under the supervision of the division of parole and probation for the rest of his natural life."

The commutation of sentence was granted to Edward Riley, convicted of assault and battery in Baltimore county. He had served all but two months of a six-month sentence.

Paroles included: Samuel E. Courtney, 22, convicted of larceny in Montgomery county and sentenced to twelve months, all but about five months having been served.

Lester Payne, 27, convicted of incest in Frederick county and sentenced to four years, about one year and nine months remaining to be served.

Eugene Davis, 24, convicted of larceny in Prince Georges county and sentenced to eighteen months, eight of which remain to be served. Melvin Brown, 18, convicted of forgery in Montgomery county and sentenced to two years, all but eleven months served.

Charles Shirik, 21, convicted of breaking and entering in Carroll county and sentenced to five years imprisonment, about twenty months remaining unserved.

Theaters Today

Music Plays Stellar
Role in Disney Film

Music, always a vital important factor in any Walt Disney film, plays a stellar role in "Bambi," Disney's newest feature-length multiplane technicolor production, starting tomorrow at the Liberty theater.

All of the elements of beauty, love, romance, excitement and pathos which made Felix Salten's "Bambi" a book-of-the-month best seller inspired Disney's composers, Frank Churchill and Edward Plumb, to use music as a potent factor.

The musical heritage of "Bambi" is rich, Churchill, whose themes are touched with the same magic which dusts the Disney characters, was responsible for the unforgettable music of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs." Edward Plumb, who arranged most of the "Bambi" music and who was responsible for some of the main thematic material, was the studio musical director on "Fantasia."

With only a little over 900 words of dialogue throughout the entire picture, music was called upon to take the place of dialogue in countless scenes of "Bambi." But its use did not stop there. At the opening of the picture, the musical score guides the audience into the mood of the story, the feeling of the great forest where the action takes place. Adroitly chosen themes make the audience one with the animal characters with whom they share the same emotions which go to make up a full human life.

Gleason and Silvers
Are Top Comedy Team

James Gleason and Phil Silvers, who handle the comedy end of "Footlight Serenade," the new Twentieth Century-Fox musical now at the Strand are fast emerging as one of the most amusing teams in Hollywood.

They were both featured in "My Gal Sal," and "Footlight Serenade" they work in really close harmony. Gleason appears as a worried theatrical producer, while Silvers is at home in the role of his crony and star comedian, who is the cause of most of Jimmy's imagined blues.

They made a grand team for the simple reason that Gleason is the practitioner of the "slow burn" and must be complimented by someone to "touch the fire" to him. And who could do that better than Phil? He doesn't see well, hear well or do anything well, except talk—and that at all times. As a result, he keeps Gleason's "burn" working overtime in "Footlight Serenade," while at the same time he doesn't bother to hide his "fire" under a bushel basket.

Latest Hollywood
Cinderella Story

Screen stars have no monopoly on Hollywood Cinderella stories. The rise of Isobel Lennart and Lee Gold—both in their early twenties—from obscurity less than a year ago to the authors of one of the year's most hilarious comedy-romances compares with any pumpkin-and-coach story. The pair, with no previous experience, are credited with writing Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "The Affairs of Martha."

It started when Miss Lennart, former stenographer working as a script girl, hit upon an idea for a picture. Lee Gold, a clerk in a studio reading department, one evening met the young woman at a party. She told him the plot. They put their heads together and wrote the story. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer liked the freshness and originality of it.

and hired them to do the screen play. "The Affairs of Martha" was an idea Miss Lennart had been turning over in her mind for some time. The amusing actions of a maid who worked for her family was her inspiration.

"Rangbustler" Pictures
Shown in 9,242 Theaters

Just to prove that America is still the land of glorious opportunity, Jimmy Fidler, well known movie reporter and radio critic comes up with some cheering and startling figures about three boys who last year were unknown and today are in the top flight western ratings.

Starting from scratch, "Rangbustler," "Dusty" King and "Alibi" Terhune, swept "Rangbustlers" by producer George W. Weeks, by plain 100 per cent acting, action, melody and comedy have lifted themselves right into moviedom's select circle and today the booking charts show that out of 20,000 theaters listed in the nation, these boys have already been seen in 9,242. Which in a year is some traveling mister, it's some traveling!

"Underground Rustlers," the latest, and one of the best of the series, starts tomorrow at the Embassy theater, and a visit there will prove to the dubious, the sceptical and the downright unbeliever, just why these three fellows are climbing so rapidly. "Underground Rustlers" is the eleventh jam-packed melody-filled "Rangbustler" opus and in addition to Corrigan, King and Terhune boasts a well-nigh unbeatable cast.

One order directed that the Marietta Manufacturing Company of Point Pleasant, W. Va., shall not discourage membership in the United Steelworkers of America, Local 328, or any other labor organization or interfere with the employees in the exercise of their rights of self organization.

Revercomb's Lead
Grows in PrimaryCharleston Man's Majority
Increases over Raymond J. Funkhouser

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 25 (AP)—Chapman Revercomb of Charleston strengthened his lead for the Republican United States Senate nomination by twelve votes today on the basis of incomplete recounts of the August 4 primary ballots now under way in several counties.

With fifty-seven of Ohio county's 130 precincts counted for the second time, Revercomb made a net gain of nine votes over Raymond J. Funkhouser, Shepherdstown business man.

Official returns from forty-nine counties and the results of six recounts gave Revercomb a lead of 144 votes. This does not take into account results in several counties.

A recount also is under way in Kanawha county, but so far less than thirty of the 284 precincts have been tabulated. No material change from the first official totals has developed thus far.

In Raleigh county, where twenty-seven of the 108 precincts have been recounted, Revercomb showed a net gain of three votes.

During the day the county court overruled a motion by Revercomb's counsel to throw out one Raleigh precinct on the ground of "certain irregularities."

War Brings Greatest Shakeup of Coaches

More than Sixty Of 1941's Tutors Now in Service

Fifty Per Cent Turnover Recorded in Pacific Coast Conference

By DILLON GRAHAM
NEW YORK, Aug. 25 (Wide World)—Alumni wolves chased unfortunate football coaches in other seasons but the coaches quit voluntarily this year to chase the Axis wolves. Pearl Harbor, among other things, brought about the biggest shake-up of gridiron mentors this land has ever seen.

These men whose lives had been spent teaching youngsters team work and how to play a rough game were quickly accepted by Uncle Sam to toughen up the youngsters who are playing on his team. More than sixty of 1941's grid tutors now are wearing military garb.

His Minnesota team had hardly won the mythical national championship before Bernie Bierman, a former marine, was called up. He's drilling one of the four navy pre-flight aviation school teams at Iowa State.

Crowley at North Carolina
Coaching the other teams are Sleepy Jim Crowley, whose Fordham club was the East's best, at North Carolina; Ray Wolf, former North Carolina mentor, at Georgia, and Red Strader, of St. Mary's, and Tex Oliver, of Oregon at St. Mary's naval school.

Wallace Wade, who coached Duke to a Southern Conference championship and a Rose bowl assignment, handles an army gridiron club training on the West Coast, while Bob Neyland, long a power at the University of Tennessee, handles a similar team in the East at New Haven, Conn.

There was a fifty per cent turnover in the Pacific Coast Conference, while one-third of the Western Conference coaches are new. The Southern Conference has six new mentors.

Welch Replaces Phelan
Ralph (Pete) Welch replaced Jimmy Phelan at Washington and Phelan drew Strader's St. Mary's post. Jeff Cravath took over at Southern California when Sam Barry went into the Navy. Clark Shaughnessy deserted Stanford for Maryland and Marchmont Schwartz caught on at Palo Alto, Oregon had to choose twice before it got a coach. Vaughn Corley had scarcely been named to succeed Tex Oliver before he followed Tex into military service and was replaced by John Warren.

George Hauser took charge at Minnesota and when Mal Elward went into the Navy, Elmer Burnham got the Purdue job. When Bob Zupke left Illinois after twenty-nine years of coaching, Ray Ellett was named head man.

Jones Called by Army
The Army called Cliff Jones from Nebraska to become graduate manager of athletics at West Point and Glenn Pressnell got the Lincoln post. Lowell Dawson went to Minnesota to help Hauser and left the only vacancy in the Southeastern Conference, which was filled by Monk Simons.

Earl Walsh took over for Crowley at Fordham and Commander John E. Whelchel succeeded Swede Larsen at Navy. Howie Odell, Wisconsin assistant, followed Spike Nelson at Yale and Anthony (Ank) Scanton replaced Joe Sheeketski at Holy Cross.

The six new Southern loop coaches are Shaughnessy, Ed Cameron at Duke, Jim Tatum at North Carolina; Jerry Holstein at Washington and Lee; Johnny Penlon at Richmond and Johnny Baker at George Washington; Riley Smith, of W. & L. and Bill Reinhard, of G. W.; are in the Navy. Matty Bell, of S. M. U., went into the Naval Reserve and was replaced by James H. Stewart. Harry Hughes quit after thirty-one years at Colorado State and was followed by Julius Wagner. Ellison Ketchum took charge at Denver.

Sectional Shifts
Here are the other coaching changes, by sections:
EAST: Jack Sutherland, Brooklyn Dodgers pro coach, went into the navy and was replaced by Mike Getto. Mike Snider, Juanita College, Harry Rockefeller, Rutgers; Francis Krause, Hobart; C. B. ## Tom Kibler, Washington College's Athletic Director, Called by Army

CHESTERTOWN, Md., Aug. 25 (AP)—J. Thomas (Tom) Kibler, for more than twenty-eight years Washington college athletic director, will report to Camp Pickett, Va., Friday for active duty with the United States Army.

Dr. Gilbert W. Mead, college president, today said Kibler had been granted a leave of absence for the duration and that he would serve on the Pickett general staff with the rank of captain. He will be in charge of all camp athletics.

Dr. Mead announced that Kibler's place would be taken by Frederick W. Dumschott, graduate manager of athletics and assistant professor of government and history at the college. Dumschott will continue also as graduate manager.

This will be the second time that Kibler has been granted a leave of absence from the college to enter the armed forces. In the early spring of 1917, he was called for duty, and attended the officers' training school at Fort Myer, Va.

After three months' training, he was commissioned a first lieutenant and was among the first Americans to sail for France and overseas service. He was cited three times, receiving the Distinguished Service medal, the Silver Star citation and the French Croix de Guerre.

Carrington To Assist
Dr. Mead announced also that Henry W. Carrington, of Waterbury, Conn., had been named assistant professor of education at the college.

Previously, George Ekaltis, Washington football coach, had resigned to join the coaching staff at Lehigh university, Bethlehem, Pa.

We are meeting the problem in athletics as it arises," Dr. Mead said. "Some of our competitors in football are cancelling games but not enough to warrant suspension of the sport."

"We certainly shall not abandon

Slaughter Takes Second in Senior Loop Stick Race

Reiser Holds Lead, Reflecting Dodger-Cardinal Pennant Battle

NEW YORK, Aug. 25 (AP)—Reflecting the National League pennant battle between the clubs, Pete Reiser of the Brooklyn Dodgers and Enos (Country) Slaughter of the St. Louis Cardinals are tangling in an interesting contest for the circuit's batting lead.

Slaughter came up from fourth place to the second during the past week and after Monday night's tussle was only seven points behind the pace-setting Reiser. Slaughter batted over fourteen hits in twenty-four times at bat to lift his average twelve points from 316 to 328 in seven games. During the same period, Reiser lost one percentage point, hitting seven times in twenty-two attempts to wind up at 335.

Lombardi Third
As a result, Ernie Lombardi of Boston was shoved back into third place as his average dropped from 325 to 320. Following him another pair of Dodger-Card duelists exchanged places. Sam Musial of St. Louis, with a three-point gain to 319 took over fourth place while Joe Medwick of Brooklyn dropped seven points and landed in fifth at 316.

Other regulars in the Big Ten after Monday's games were Lou Novikoff, Chicago, 313; Johnny Mize, New York, 302; Walker Cooper, St. Louis, 301; Stan Hack, Chicago, 300; and Bob Elliott, Pittsburgh, 294. Elliott took the place of his teammate, Elbie Fletcher, who was eighth last week.

Dodger Pitchers Lead
Slaughter continued to hold the edge over his rival in slugging, setting the pace for the league in three departments with 154 basehits, sixteen triples and eighty-four runs batted in. He moved up to a first-place tie with Brooklyn's Dolph Camilli in the R. B. I. column, ousting Medwick from the lead. Reiser's eighty-two runs gave him second place, eleven behind Mel Ott of the Giants, and his thirteen stolen bases held good for the lead.

Ott and Hack broke ties for the lead in two slugging departments. Ott made it twenty-four home runs, three more than Camilli and Mize, and Hack hit his thirty-first double to break a deadlock with Medwick and Marty Marion of the Cards.

In pitching, the Dodgers still were one-two. Larry French with thirteen victories and two defeats and Whit Wyatt with fifteen and four.

Down South
SOUTH: Joe Justice, Tampa; Laird Holt, Centre; Arnold Winkenhoffer, Western Kentucky; Frank Summers, Hampden Sydney; Taylor Sanford, Randolph-Macon; Buddy Hackman, Roanoke; Charles Jamerson, Memphis Tech; Herbert Schwartz, Arkansas State.

Boston Red Sox Win Double-Bill From Cleveland

BOSTON, Aug. 25 (AP)—The Boston Red Sox swept their third double-header in as many playing days at the expense of the Cleveland Indians, 4-3 in eleven innings and 5-1, today to total fourteen victories in their last fifteen starts.

Manager Lou Boudreau put the Indians into a 3-2 lead in the first of the eleventh by bashing out his second homer of the season. Then Don DiMaggio opened the Soxers' winning rally against Tom Ferrick with a single and he advanced when Johnny Pesky beat out a bunt. Ted Williams topped a ball to Ferrick and Pesky was forced at second base by Boudreau, who was jostled so hard that he threw into the Boston dugout while trying for the double play at first.

DiMaggio scored the tying run as a result of the error and Williams took second. After Bobby Doerr and Tony Lupien were passed to fill the bases, Lou Finney smashed a hit off Ray Mack's glove to drive in Williams with the winning run.

The indignant Boudreau protested so strenuously about his bumping that he was ordered off the field after turning in his second game lineup to Umpire Cal Hubbard, who then ejected Al Milnar and Otto Denning for their conduct on the bench.

DiMaggio's triple and a Pesky fly put the Soxers into a 1-1 tie in their half of the first and they put over the deciding run in the third on a pass, a Pesky single and Williams' fly. The scores:

Williams Holds Lead in American League Slugging

Cleveland Loses Its Final Representative in Loop's "Big Ten"

CHICAGO, Aug. 25 (AP)—The Cleveland Indians, who once threatened not only to win the American League pennant but also to carry off four or five top places in the individual batting chase, long ago dropped out of the title race and today haven't a man left among the league's top hitters.

At various times Oris Hockett, Jeff Heath, Roy Weatherly and Manager Lou Boudreau all held lofty places in the select batting list. Time came when Fleming was the last man to stay up there. This week even the pounding first baseman's name isn't included in the top ten.

Williams Still on Top
The scrap for first, is still between Boston's Ted Williams and New York's Joe Gordon, with Ted continuing in front despite a six-point slump last week. Through Monday's games Williams had a 346 average to 337 for second place Gordon. Close behind were Stan Spence of Washington at 333, Taft Wright of Chicago at 332, and John Pesky of Boston at 327.

The remainder of the field has Bobby Doerr, Boston, and George Case, Washington, tied at 317; Walter Judnich, St. Louis, 311; Joe DiMaggio, New York, 306; and Vernon Stephens, St. Louis, 303. Judnich is the new member of the top ten, replacing Fleming.

Borowy Heads Pitchers
The Williams stranglehold on three specialty departments continued with Ted leading in runs batted in, 111; home runs, twenty-six, and runs scored, 107. Dom DiMaggio, Boston, took over the lead in doubles at thirty-five, Heath and Spence remained deadlocked in most triples at twelve apiece, and Case held his margin in stolen bases with thirty-one.

The Borowy-Hughson pitching front held up under a week's assault with Hank Borowy of the Yankees leading with twelve wins and two losses and Tex Hughson of the Red Sox next with seventeen and three. Ernie Bonham of the Yanks had a sixteen and four record.

Braves' Battery Heaviest
The Boston Nationals have the heaviest battery—Johnny Hutchings, who weighs 235, and Ernie Lombardi, who weighs 218.

"SPUD" CHANDLER BOUNCES BACK, HEADS FOR 20-VICTORY SEASON

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Sports Editor
Ace of the New York Yankee mound staff, Spurgeon Ferdinand Chandler, the Georgia "Yankee," finally is winning a long fight to make good in the big leagues.

When Chandler graduated from the University of Georgia in 1932 with a bachelor or science degree, he began a career of baseball which has taken him from coast to coast in minor league play, has been filled with injuries and back days and finally, today finds him perched on the top rung of the ladder of pitching success.

Chandler, known as "Spud" to his baseball friends, already has won fourteen games against only four losses and is a fair bet to cop twenty decisions, goal of all pitchers.

Toughest break Chandler faced was in 1939, when he broke his ankle and had to stay out of baseball most of the season. In 1940 he favored the ankle, and as a result, could win but eight games. Last year he pitched good ball but couldn't win a game until July.

This season Chandler really has clicked. He has helped keep the Yanks far out in front of the pack by his steady twirling.

A football and track star at Georgia, Chandler broke into pro baseball the same year he graduated from college. His first job was with Springfield of the Eastern league. In eight appearances on the mound he won four games.

The next year he went to Birmingham of the New York-Pennsylvania league. Following this he spent time with Newark, Syracuse, Minneapolis, Oakland and Portland before coming back east for a trial with the Yankees. He needed more seasoning and he went to Newark, where he won fourteen games in 1937.

Chandler's best year to date was in 1938, when he won fourteen games against five losses. Chandler is 33 years old. He is a right-handed pitcher, standing six feet tall and weighing 180 pounds. He pitched one game of the 1941 world series and lost it to the Dodgers.

Stanford Will Meet Sailor Court Team In Sugar Bowl Game

Terrapins Nine-Game Grid Slate Complete
COLLEGE PARK, Md., Aug. 25 (AP)—The University of Maryland football team will play the Georgia pre-flight school team Saturday November 21 at Athens, Ga., thus completing a nine-game schedule for the Old Liners.

The game is expected to be the big home feature for the Georgia service eleven coached by Lieut. Raymond (Bear) Wolf, University of North Carolina coach last year and former Texas Christian star.

With the scheduling of his game the Marylanders would have a ten game program for their first season under Clark Shaughnessy but for the fact the game scheduled Dec. 5 with Keebler field, Miss., had to be dropped when the service team cancelled its schedule.

Maryland will play another service game with the Lakehurst Naval Air Station at College Park, Oct. 3.

Bambino Revives Sports Memories Of Fabulous '20s

Ruth Proves Over-Publicized Heroes of That Era Were Good

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Aug. 25 (Wide World)—Babe Ruth sending a baseball in a tremendous arc into the blur of faces in right field. . . . Bill Tilden enlivening the center court at Wimbledon with petty, ill-tempered histrionics. . . . Jack Dempsey attacking with snarling, tigerish ferocity. . . . Helen Wills blandly sweeping to net victory after net victory. . . . The Four Horsemen. . . . Bobby Jones.

All were a part of that era of wonderful nonsense; the fabulous '20s with their golden showers for the professional athlete, their three-sheet publicity for the amateurs, their flagpole sitters and bunion derbies.

Memories of those gaudy, care-free days crowded out the present in the minds of the more than 69,000 fans who watched Babe Ruth and Walter Johnson at the Yankee stadium last Sunday.

And the Babe did more than revive memories with prodigious clouts. In a way he was proving that the heroes of that era were not just heroes because of the money they received, or the publicity.

They were heroes because they were good. The Bambino showed you that.

They Had To Be Good

When a fat, untrained 47-year-old can shake off the rust of inactivity overnight and come out to knock a baseball farther than nine-tenths of the young, active players of today, you get an idea of what the Babe was like in his hey-day.

And the Babe, in showing that there is only one Babe, by proxy was showing that there is only one Jones, and Tilden, and Wills, and Dempsey.

Over-paid and over-publicized they were, but the fact remains they dominated their fields because they were good, and if the performance of a Babe Ruth coming out of the cobwebs isn't proof enough, you might look at Tilden, who even today can out-point all but possibly one or two tennis players for one set; or Jones, a Sunday golfer for a dozen years now but who has demonstrated that with anything approaching serious practice he would be a factor in any tournament.

In some fields other stars have come along to dominate as did the heroes of the '20s. Ellsworth Vines and, later, Don Budge were kings of all they surveyed in tennis. Alice Marble took over the queenly robe of Helen Wills, and was invincible. Joe Louis rules the fighting heavyweights even more convincingly than Dempsey.

Glamorous Figures

But for some reason or other the earlier heroes overshadowed them. There is an intangible something about that era that glamorizes the names of the figures connected with it.

Louis might be better than Dempsey, Byron Nelson or Ben Hogan might be superior to Jones, Miss Marble might be a greater tennis player than Miss Wills, the Minnesota football teams might spot the Four Horsemen twenty points and whip them.

But you can't prove it, and whether superior or inferior, the names that screamed from the headlines during the tumultuous '20s will remain in the mind as those of super-stars long after those of more recent figures have left a blank space in the memory.

But they were good, make no mistake about that. The Babe showed last Sunday just how good they must have been, although it's true the '20s couldn't have picked a better representative for a show-down.

For, when all is said and done, there is just one of those fabulous figures whose place, it is unanimously agreed, never has been threatened.

His name is Ruth.

Cumberland Oilers Trim Pirates, 17-2

The Cumberland Oilers, with "Bill" Scaletta pitching four-hit ball, trimmed the Pirates 17-2 in a softball game yesterday on the Independence street field.

Bob Darr accounted for two of the Pirate safeties while Don Blaul and Dan Goff led the Oilers' eighteen-hit assault. The score: OILERS . . . 000 616 4—17 18 1 PIRATES . . . 001 100 0—2 4 4 Oilers—W. Scaletta and D. Goff, Pirates—R. Darr and R. Harper.

Rose Bowl Star

Al Krueger, Washington Redskins blocking back, played end for USC before joining the Redskins and in 1939 beat Duke in the Rose bowl with a last-minute catch from Doyle Nave. Then in 1940 he scored the clinching touchdown in Rose bowl as USC defeated Tennessee, 14-0.

Delicatets Blast McIntyre Tossers

City League Champions Score 12 Runs in First and Win 22 to 9

Lacy's Delicatets, 1942 champions of the City Softball League, had little trouble turning back McIntyre's Hustlers by a 22-9 margin in a clash Monday evening on the Taylor field.

The Delicatets opened up with twelve runs in the first inning and added three more in the third, four in the fifth and three in the sixth. The Hustlers tallied seven of their runs in the second when Sponsor Lacy Cifala took over the mound chores for the Delicatets.

Wright started for the Lacymen but was relieved in the second by Cifala, who gave way to Crabtree in the sixth. Miller, starting McIntyre twirler, was driven to cover in the first with Carl McIntyre finishing.

This evening at 6 o'clock on the Taylor diamond, the Delicatets will meet the United Brethren combination of the South Cumberland Sunday School League. The score: HUSTLERS . . . 070 610 1—9 12 2 DELICATETS . . . (12:03 043 x—22 22 2 Hustlers—Miller, C. McIntyre and Hunt; Delicatets—Wright, Cifala, Crabtree and Morgan.

Jumper Volunteers

NOTRE DAME, Ind. — Keith O'Rourke, ace Notre Dame high jumper who holds the all-time Fighting Irish outdoor record of six feet 7 1/2 inches—good only for third place in the 1941 N. C. A. A. meet—has volunteered in the Army Air Corps and will miss his final year of competition.

Bugs and Trout Filmed To Make Lures for Trout

NEW YORK, Aug. 25 — Tying trout flies is for Floyd McVay, of Lead, S. D., a hobby that involves photographic study of the bugs and insects eaten by trout. McVay, a Black Hills mining contractor, began tying his own trout flies nine years ago.

"One thing led to another until now I have a motion picture camera and projector, a large collection of bugs and insects, and fly-making materials from all over the world," he says.

McVay uses the camera to film the development of insects on which trout thrive from the egg stage to maturity. He keeps a live collection of bugs and insects in his home to study their construction and habits. "Making a trout fly is not a simple process," he says. "Thread has to be twisted and cemented into the body of the fly, the hook must be woven in and fine hairlike legs and wings attached."

Colors also must be in the right shade, he says.

"Colors are so deceptive to the naked eye that I use a jeweler's diamond glass for determining shades."

On his work bench are supplied of silk chenille, quills or porcupine and condor, hair from squirrels, moose, caribou, red fox and barget, and feathers from chickens, ducks, geese, pheasants, ibises, flamingoes, peacocks and emus.

To Have Mascot

PHILADELPHIA — The Theta Upsilon sorority of Temple university has petitioned the Council on Athletics to adopt one of its members, Ray Morrison, as official mascot for the Temple football eleven this fall, for they believe that with Ray Morrison as head coach, and his feminine namesake as mascot, the owls are sure to enjoy a winning season.

Speedy Standlee Bolsters Spirits Of Army Menior

Fullback Makes Neyland's Tennessee Plungers Look Like Scrubs

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 25.—The ponding thunder of the big fellow's cleated shoes awoke an echoing thud in Col. Bob Neyland's heart here today as the All-Army football team quickened its practice pace in preparation for its three-game schedule for the benefit of Army Emergency Relief next month. The mere sight of Norman Standlee, that big bad Bear who ran rampant in the spangles of the Chicago Bears a year ago, evoked a delighted yelp from the usually quiet Neyland. For Standlee is in reality a football coach's dream come true.

Rapid, rampant and robust—all 237 pounds of him—Standlee should make the timbers and steel of Baltimore's Municipal stadium shiver when Neyland's All-Army huskies take the field against the Brooklyn Dodgers, of the National Professional Football League, on Wednesday night, September 16. It's a cinch that Baltimore has never seen his like before on the gridiron.

Standlee Has Speed
That Standlee is a fullback to rank with the "Bronk" Nagurskis, the "Five Yard" McCarthys and the Ted Coys of other days, is something nobody will deny. He rips and tears the heart out of an enemy line. But he is something more than that, too. He has a blazing turn of speed that none of the other great line-smashers had before him. Out in the open, Standlee can whirl and dance with the easy grace of a Chris Cagle and a "Red" Grange.

Col. Neyland's frame or mind, slightly on the dour and pessimistic side during the first week of practice at Yale university took a sharp upward turn the day that Standlee reported. He wouldn't say so out loud—his strict sense of loyalty would preclude that—but one look at Standlee told Neyland that here was a fullback to make even the great powerhouse plungers he had at Tennessee look like mere scrubs in comparison.

Close to Perfect Fullback
There isn't an ounce of fat on Standlee's great frame. As Clark Shaughnessy put it in the dressing room at Palo Alto one day while Standlee stood under a shower, you could "put Standlee in a cauldron of boiling water and not a single grease spot would come to the surface." Standlee's pulsing power, added to his devastating speed, make him very close to the perfect fullback.

No wonder Neyland was grinning broadly today.

Rowe Plans To Get Job in War Plant

DETROIT, Aug. 19. (AP)—Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, former Detroit Tiger hurler who recently refused to go to the Montreal club of the International League when sent there on option by the Brooklyn Dodgers, said here today he planned to go to his home in El Dorado, Ark., and get a job in a war plant. Rowe, who stopped in Detroit to visit friends said that he was "through with baseball for this year" but that he still has hopes of remaining in the major league.

Condition of Evers Shows Improvement

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 25. (AP)—The condition of Johnny Evers, 61, famous as middleman of the Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance double-play combination in major league baseball, was described by hospital attendants as "slightly improved." He collapsed last night while visiting friends, and was reported suffering from a cerebral hemorrhage.

SAYS WHO!

"We don't know what they're saying, but we do know who won the debate. That's the gentleman at the left, Umpire Al Barlick of the National League. Catcher Thompson Livingston of the Philadelphia Phils argued futilely about a decision he didn't like in a game with the Giants in New York."

The Spotlight by GRANTLAND RICE

What They Talk About
ALBUQUERQUE, N. M.—On a transcontinental trip you wonder, outside of the war, what they are talking about?

Moving from New York to Los Angeles, in something approaching an inquisitive mood, you can get a fair idea of the national chitchat by stopping off at Chicago, Kansas City and Albuquerque en route west.

In a sporting way Chicago today is the seething city. Service men and noncombatants had these ideas in mind—

1. The All-Star-Chicago Bear game on Friday night, good for $150,000 in war relief, plus a whale of a scrap and scramble.

2. The Alsbach-Shut Out crack at the $80,000 American Derby on Saturday—possibly the top feature of racing for 1942.

3. The record-breaking roundup in the Big Nine, plus Notre Dame, for what looks to be football's college hot spot—embracing such performers as Billy Hillenbrand, Pat Harder, Tom Kuzma, Otto Graham, Angelo Bertelli, Bill Daley, and a host of others.

4. Then they collar you about the Yankees and the Dodgers and the chances of the fighting Cardinals.

5. How will the two Army teams come out against seven rough and ready professional squads? Can Major Wallace Wade's outfit handle Sammy Baugh's steadily passing next Sunday?

For example, in one spot I ran into a group of six or seven soldiers, sailors and marines, and within a few minutes there were over sixty gathered around who wanted to know about their home towns or their home sections in baseball and football.

Scene Changes

On your way through Chicago and Kansas City, headed for the busy New Mexico headquarters of Albuquerque, most of your contacts are with men in uniform. They are covering the map today.

But they talk little about war—the one topic that has changed their lives. This subject lies too close. They take war and what goes with war for granted. That's their 100 per cent job.

But on the side their next interest is sport.

"What kind of Army teams have we got? Can they whip these crack pros?"

Their interest in these Army games is natural. The receipts mean quick protection for their families in case of trouble—protection the government can't offer for many delayed weeks, or even months. The fact that Chicago and Los Angeles might turn out a combined attendance of 200,000 spectators, good for over $300,000 in receipts, is cheering news. The Army and Navy are out to raise around $16,000,000—no light lump. But there will soon be 8,000,000 men in uniform. So $16,000,000 is no vast financial tidal wave.

And you'd be surprised how many service men ask you how the Dodgers will come out against the Yankees. "Can't Whit Wyatt beat the Yankees at least two games? Won't this be a much tougher world series?"

At Kansas City

At Kansas City you run into such keen, sports-minded people as Roy Roberts and Clyde McBride.

McBride has been one of the sages of Midwestern sport for over twenty-five years. There is no abler sportsman than Clyde, who tells you there'll be a heater-skelter among the Big Six, with Missouri close to the front.

Missouri had one of the best back-fields in the land last season until the Tigers from Columbia ran into the rain-swept muck of the Sugar bowl game against Fordham at New Orleans.

They play far better football in this Big Six country than most of the nation knows. Nebraska and Missouri have had any number of teams on a par with the pick from any section.

Among the Soldiers

Most of the soldiers you meet want to talk about baseball and football. The majority still believe the Yankees can handle the Dodgers as they look back over the past-performance chart. They are smart enough to ride with the champion until the champion is beaten.

But even the Yankee supporters are looking for more trouble than they ran against last fall.

As these men in khaki come from all over the map, football arguments get out of hand. The Midwesterners stick with Minnesota, Michigan, and Notre Dame against the pick of the pack. They give you Ohio State and Indiana on the side.

The Southerners advise you to keep an eye on Georgia. From the Southwest they name Texas A. and M. and Texas.

The East and the Far West would rather wait a little longer, but the main Eastern vote goes to Fordham.

Sectional pride is still as keen as ever. This is one of the reasons so many are waiting for the next two big games—in Chicago and Los Angeles—which cover 80 per cent of the map so far as talent goes.

City-Wide Scrap Metal Collection Set for Sept. 13

Volunteer Workers and Trucks Will Gather Scrap from Sidewalks

Sunday, September 17, has been set aside for the committee for collection of scrap metals in Cumberland to aid the war effort. As one committee member said last night, "lets make September the Thirtieth an unlucky day for the Axis."

The city has been zoned into three parts—West Side, South End below Williams street, and North and East Cumberland—for the cleanup method of getting in the scrap metals. Promptly at 1 p. m. trucks and crews of voluntary workers will start out to collect the scrap left along the sidewalk.

Decided Sunday Best Day The committee decided at last night's meeting that Sunday would be the best time as the necessary trucks and workers would be idle on that day and could be used in the collection.

In order to facilitate the collection it was pointed out that the tin cans and other useless metals such as tin roofs would not be collected but only heavy metals such as old flat irons, boilers, iron gratings, old automobile parts, old iron and brass beds, and small pieces of iron, steel, copper and the like.

With fifteen trucks donated so far it is expected an additional twenty or thirty trucks will be donated by patriotic truckmen for the collection. Charles Bramble, president of the Teamsters Union, and Leo T. Downey, district engineer for the state roads commission, will arrange for the necessary trucks.

Workers Can Volunteer John Neal, of Local 1874, TWUA; R. C. Simmons, of the A.F.O.L. laborers union; and R. S. Copeland, of Port Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, will contract various civic, fraternal, veterans, and labor organizations for voluntary workers on the trucks. In addition any person who wishes to volunteer their help may do so by contacting any of these men.

French Sensabaugh, Martin Corrigan and Charles F. Heller will direct collection of the scrap metals in the various zones. After each truck has been fully loaded it will be weighed on scales and then taken to one of the local junk dealers and dumped. A receipt from the scales house will be retained by the truck driver and be turned in to the committee.

Money for War Charity Money realized from the sale of the scrap will then be turned over in equal shares to the Red Cross and USO, the committee decided.

W. Donald Smith, chairman of the committee, said that all persons should inspect their homes and garages for any scrap metal and gather it into a pile in readiness for the collection. The scrap metals collected will eventually find its way into the nation's blast furnaces and emerge in the forms of guns, tanks and planes, he added.

It is Cumberland's chance to do its part to avenge Pearl Harbor and those men who have died in the struggle against the Nazi and Jap aggressors, Smith declared.

The latter unit made a favorable

P. E. SCRAPS FENCE—The Potomac Edison Company is doing its part toward the war effort by scrapping 700 feet of ornamental iron fence at Narrows Park. Approximately two tons of scrap metal will be realized from this job, it is estimated. The fence, three and a half feet high, borders the front of the park facing Route 40, and was erected fifty years ago by the Cumberland Electric Street Railway Company which was absorbed by P. E. in the 1923 merger. Henry W. Price, district manager of the company, and John F. Rodman, operating manager, are shown standing near the removed iron arch to the gateway of the park and sections of the fence which were cut into four foot lengths by acetylene torches. The work of removing the fence is being done by the Feldstein Iron and Metal Company.

Fishell Girl Is Crushed under Wheels of Truck

Jacqueline Fishell Tries To Jump on Vehicle; Misses Footing

Crushed under the rear dual wheels of a stake body truck at Lafferty's siding, about 100 feet west of the Mt. Savage road, Jacqueline Fishell, 11, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. N. Fishell, Route 1, Narrows Park, was critically injured at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Sgt. John H. Doud, of the state police, said the child apparently attempted to jump on the running board of the truck operated by Marcus W. Volk, Route 1, missed her footing and fell under the rear wheels.

The wheels passed over the girl's body, crushing the pelvis bone and fracturing her left thigh. She bled profusely and was given blood transfusions in Allegany hospital in an effort to save her life.

Volk, driving the truck owned by the Gulf Refining Company, had just turned on the dirt road at Lafferty's siding of the Cumberland and Pennsylvania railroad from the Mt. Savage road, when the accident occurred. The scene of the accident is just a short distance from U. S. Route 40.

The Fishell girl and several other children including Charlotte Parks and Yancy Shafer were playing together as the truck entered the road. Doud said Volk evidently was driving slowly and stopped immediately.

No charges have been entered against Volk pending further investigation. The girl was taken to the hospital in Stein's ambulance.

Nephew of Local Couple Wounded In Midway Battle

Robert J. Hodgins, third class petty officer, a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Utz, 860 Camden avenue, was wounded five times during the Midway battle while serving aboard the Aircraft Carrier Yorktown. He is an aerial gunner.

He has been recommended for citation by his commanding officer and recently was discharged from a San Francisco hospital and returned to his Brooklyn home for a thirty-day furlough.

He is a son of Austin Hodgins, an overseas World War veteran. Young Hodgins has been a frequent visitor in Cumberland and is expected here during his furlough.

C AND P RAILROAD TO STOP PASSENGER SERVICE ON SEPT. 1

Notices have been posted at conspicuous points along the Cumberland and Pennsylvania railroad calling attention to the fact that passenger service on that line between Cumberland and Piedmont will be discontinued following the final run of train No. 125 which leaves the Queen City depot at 3:20 p. m., on Monday, August 31.

Permission to discontinue passenger service on the line was recently granted by the public service commissions of West Virginia and Maryland.

The Cumberland and Pennsylvania railroad has given this service for ninety-seven years. Prior to 1929 the daily trains were hauled by steam locomotives but in the past thirteen years a gas-electric engine has been operated by the company.

Jack Seckman, engineer, and Daniel Arnold, conductor, will return to the railroad's freight service.

Fence at Narrows Park Is Scrapped For War Effort

Two Tons of Iron Is Latest Contribution of Potomac Edison Company

Seven hundred feet of ornamental iron fence, erected fifty years ago, is being removed under the supervision of the Potomac Edison Company for the scrap pile as the power company's contributing to the war effort.

The work of cutting the fence with acetylene torches into four foot sections and the removal of same is being done by employees of the Feldstein Iron and Metal Company, local dealer in scrap materials.

Fence Erected in 1892 John F. Rodman, operating manager of the Potomac Edison Company, said that according to records available the three and a half foot fence was erected at the park facing the national highway in 1892 by the Cumberland Street Electric Railway Company at the time the trolley line was extended from Cumberland to that point.

The first street car was operated in Cumberland in July, 1891, and the line was extended from North Centre street to Narrows Park a year later. The park, formerly owned by the street railway company, became the property of the Potomac Edison Company in 1923 when a merger became effective.

Officials of the street railway company at the time trolley service was introduced here were George D. Landwehr, president, J. H. Holzshu, George L. Wellington and J. A. McHenry.

Two Tons of Scrap

Rodman stated that the Potomac Edison Company is co-operating 100 per cent in the metal scrap program and in view of the fact that the fence had outlived its usefulness the company desired to have it removed and contributed toward the war effort of the Allied cause. He estimated that the 700 yards of fence will comprise approximately two tons of scrap metal.

British Control Of India Is Not In Jeopardy Now

Minister Tells Rotarians Danger Lies in Possible Japanese Invasion

Control of India by the British, which is of great importance to the United Nations, is not at present in danger, according to the Rev. Roy Dunkelberger, of Meyersdale, Pa.

But, the Rev. Mr. Dunkelberger told Rotarians at their weekly luncheon yesterday at the Central Y. M. C. A., this can be accepted only up to the point of a possible Japanese invasion. If that happens, the speaker said, danger will lie in the non-violent, non-co-operation of the Congress party under the leadership of Mohandas K. Gandhi, which would serve as a sort of fifth column aid to the invaders. The outcome then would be anybody's guess, as Eastern India, unlike Western India, is not fortified.

The British Indian government will be enabled to keep things well in hand, the Rev. Mr. Dunkelberger said, for various reasons, chiefly because the Indian people are almost hopelessly divided and unorganized, are unarmed and can be easily controlled by a comparatively small number of soldiers.

India Strategically Located

The importance of British control of India to the United Nations, it was pointed out, lies in its extremely strategic location. So long as that control can be retained the Germans and the Japanese can be decidedly separated.

Division of the Indians has many ramifications, the speaker noted, through the caste system, religions, languages and the variegated political set-up. There are some 200 different languages and a third of the territory containing a quarter of the 390,000,000 population is under the control of native princes, having their own governments and their own coinage. Even the Congress party, comprised mostly of Hindus and chiefly populating eight of the eleven provinces, is sharply divided.

But, while India possesses great material resources and a vast reservoir of manpower, this strength is offset by many weaknesses, the speaker pointed out.

Literacy Rate Low

The divisions mentioned constitute one great weakness. Another lies in the great gulf between the few possessed of great wealth and the almost unbelievable poverty of teeming millions. Another is in the lack of education, there being only twelve to fifteen per cent of the men and but two per cent of the women who are literate.

The Indian princes have given their co-operation to the British, it was explained. The Mohammedans, comprising the most important group, have been working for freedom but are content to wait for it until after the war. The Gandhi faction of the Congress party wants independence now regardless of consequences.

India has a million and a half soldiers, physically strong and courageous men, but, the speaker said, they have only small arms and lack modern mechanical fighting machinery.

The Rev. Mr. Dunkelberger knows India by heart, having spent thirty-two years in that country in various capacities as a representative of the Lutheran denomination.

The speaker was introduced to the club by the Rev. Edward P. Heinze, pastor of St. John's Evangelical Lutheran church, who knew him well in his college days at Gettysburg, Pa.

Auxiliary Firemen Will Meet Tonight

There will be a meeting of the Auxiliary Firemen at 7:30 o'clock this evening in the West Side Fire station, Green street.

Ceiling Prices Being Maintained, McCormick Says

OPA Head Stresses Penalties; Urges Co-operation of Consumers

A survey of inspection of 285 retail stores in Cumberland and a substantial number of retail outlets in Garrett and Washington counties indicates that ceiling prices are being generally maintained, according to Leo H. McCormick, of Baltimore, state director of the Office of Price Administration.

McCormick revealed these facts yesterday during a preliminary inspection tour with other OPA officials to check compliance with OPA regulations.

Recheck Will Be Made

"The great majority of those not in compliance when first visited," McCormick said, "are taking the necessary steps to comply with the law, and it is expected that a recheck of these stores, within a few weeks, will show almost complete co-operation. Cases of deliberate violation of price ceilings have been rare and all these cases have been reported for action."

Inspectors, according to McCormick, stressed four points to the retailers:

1. The ceiling prices are calculated correctly.
2. That ceiling prices of all cost-of-living items are posted in plain view in the store.
3. That a list of prices on cost-of-living items is filed with the local rationing board.
4. That a complete list of ceiling prices on all merchandise is now available in the store.

Consumers File Complaints

"In addition to violations discovered by OPA inspectors," McCormick said, "an increasing number of complaints are being received from consumers as the public becomes better informed about the operations of price ceilings."

McCormick declared that although the smaller storekeeper is having difficulty in determining how to price his merchandise in conformity with regulations, nevertheless when visited and properly educated he readily complied.

The state director also said that a substantial number of merchants have posted their ceiling prices on cost-of-living items correctly in their stores and filed their lists of commodities with their local war price and rationing boards.

This is particularly true in Garrett county where most activity of the local office has directed and the merchants of this county as well as Allegany are to be congratulated.

McCormick pointed out that the survey is being continued and in addition every effort is being made to contact each merchant in the three counties as soon as possible.

However, there remains no excuse for any merchant to willfully fail to post his prices and send his list to the local board. Stressing the importance of filing price lists, McCormick called attention to the heavy penalties contained in the General Maximum Price Regulations as well as consumer's suits.

"It's up to the consumer for the own benefit to familiarize the selves with the ceiling prices a see that they are charged no higher," McCormick declared. "This co-operation will maintain prices at the March level, help prevent inflation and help win the war. All must remember we are in serious war."
